★ TALBERT, Feb. 3.—Ed Helm, who has been confined to his home as the result of illness for several weeks past, is reported as somewhat improved this week.

Samuel Penrod moved from Talbert to Ontario last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Richter, who are from Sacramento, left Monday for their home following a week spent in Talbert. The visitors spent the major portion of the time in the home of Mrs. Richter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Lagier, and were guests two different days of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Calless.

According to the complaint against Anderson, he induced F. A. McFarren to subscribe $1500 to stock of the Western Smelters and Refining company, which Anderson claimed to control.

Anderson told McFarren, according to the latter, that ore from the mine assayed 10 per cent to 60 per cent lead and that Anderson controlled the stock of the company; also that the property was unenumbered.

A black and white illustration showing a man in a light-colored shirt being blindfolded by a man in a dark shirt. Two men in hats and suits stand behind them, one holding a plate. The scene is set outdoors with a building in the background. The man being blindfolded has a worried expression. The man blindfolding him is focused on the task. The two men in the background are observing the scene. One of them is holding a plate, possibly for the man being blindfolded. The overall tone is dramatic and suspenseful.

"Stand still!" growled Crossfire in a disguised voice. "You'll scarcely feel it when the air falls." Then, to his surprise Jack felt Crossfire quickly cut the rope that held his hands behind his back.

Jack continued to hold his hands behind him. He was forced to mount the scaffold. "Kneel down, freshman!" ordered the leader. Then Jack snatched off the blindfold and kicked the headless figure at his feet. It was a dummy.

Uttering a whoop of laughing derision, Jack tore away from the hands that were holding him. "You're a bunch of bungling dubs!" he cried. "The Grand Vizier is a grand siver, and the Bad Egg is rotten." Then, as their hands grabbed for him again, he smashed them aside. Whirling, he launched himself in a flying leap over the heads of the circle of fellows at the foot of the platform.

AN OLD fool (or worse) and a young gold digger (or worse) did the usual things (or worse) with the usual result. And now the whole mess is slathered over all the front pages in the world. The only unique thing about this case, from the beginning has been its unique press agency. But that has been so successful that it has spread the effluvia over the earth.

HAVE no illusions. The newspapers have made no mistake in their news judgment. The purpose of their sales departments is to give the people what they want—and the people do want this. The lid has been down for so many ages that, now when it is off, the people flock to the vent. Curiosity overcomes repulsion. The people do want it, and they are getting it. Apparently the only hope is that the overdone will have the usual effect. So far, the public stomach has proved itself shockingly strong.

THERE is of course no moral except the familiar one that old fools commonly have longer purses than young fools, and are therefore richer diggers. Also, that long suppression has made public curiosity morbid. The most discouraging feature of the whole exhibit has been its revelation of ourselves.

TO TURN to something prettier—our State department has been refreshingly intelligent in its latest handling of the Chinese question. It has not only announced a sensible policy, but has used effective methods of bringing it to the attention of the Chinese people. By simultaneous publication in the literate centers of China, the people are informed that our government is in agreement with them as to the rights they are demanding for the Chinese nation, and that it is disposed to make a treaty for the granting of those rights whenever there is a Chinese government to make it with. As to "extraterritoriality," there is, to be sure, the limitation that we will permit the cases of our nationals to be tried in the Chinese courts only as rapidly as the Chinese establish independent courts, acting under law, and presided over by judges acquainted with and responsible to that law. These were the terms given to Japan and they are now offered to China. The speed with which they graduate from promise to fulfillment is for the Chinese themselves to determine by their acts. Meantime the Chinese people are tactfully informed that the President alone can not abrogate the old treaties, and that new treaties can only be made when a Chinese government is prepared to make them, on the one side, and the Senate ratifies them, on the other. Altogether, it is a very good handling, at least, of what has been considered needlessly suffered by delayed vacillation, to become a very bad mess.

IF SO intelligent a policy is possible, even tardily, toward China, why is it not toward Latin America? If we strive so earnestly to make the Chinese understand, why do we manage so masterfully to make the Mexicans misunderstand? If we can protect American rights in Shanghai without scaring Japan, Siam or India, why can we not do the same in Nicaragua without stirring up Mexico, Brazil and Peru? And if we can have the discussion in China, where Russia really is plotting and intervening on a huge scale, why must we drag Russia in, wantonly and preposterously, to a Mexican and Central American matter in which Russia is not implicated at all? In other words, if we can show good sense far across the Pacific, why can we not save a little of it to use nearer home?

1000 ARE RESCUED FROM FLOOD ZONE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 2.—A drive for clothing for more than 1000 refugees, who were made homeless by floods in northern Arkansas, has been started by newspapers and charitable organizations here.

Relief workers have rescued more than 1000 persons, who were roomed on high ground and in tree tops in the White river valley. Churches, barns, warehouses and Cotton Plant are being used to shelter the homeless victims of the high water.

Workers searched for refugees in houseboats in the lowlands, near Cotton Plant, throughout Wednesday night. Children, shivering from cold and starving, were taken from tree tops and second stories of houses. Three small children were found on a submerged bridge, standing in the icy water up to their waists.

A levee on the White river, near Braxfield, is expected to break hourly and several hundred men were searching this morning for 20 families, believed to have been on the ground in the valley.

Transport Chaumont Departs with Men and Supplies for Duty in Orient

Brigadier General Butler Remains at Post As Commander General of Base

(By United Press)
SAN DIEGO, Feb. 3.—The transport Chaumont, carrying 1300 marines for war duty in China, sailed at 1 p. m. today. Loading of men and supplies was completed shortly before 11 o'clock.

Loading of supplies aboard the Chaumont proceeded without a stop since the ship docked at the municipal pier, last night, from San Francisco.

Truckload after truckload of marines poured on to the ship every few minutes and by the time the last of the supplies was placed aboard, all of the battalion of 1300 men was "set" for the cruise.

Brig. Gen. Smedley Butler, who is to remain at his post as commanding general at the base, watched operations.

It is expected that the Chaumont will pick up additional supplies at Honolulu.

TROOPS WILL LEAVE CAVITE FOR CHINA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—A detachment of 251 marines and 15 officers will leave Cavite, Philippine island, for Shanghai, upon the arrival of the transport Gold Star at the Philippines, tomorrow, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur was informed today by Adm. C. S. Williams, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet.

The Gold Star is carrying 150 marines from Guam, under command of Maj. S. P. Budd.

The detachment will embark on the U. S. S. Pecon, under Com. W. E. Clarke.

The distance from Cavite to Shanghai is 1170 miles.

KANSAS REPEALS ANTI-CIGARET LAW

TOPEKA, Kas., Feb. 2.—Kansas' 20-year-old anti-cigarette law will be a thing of the past just as soon as the repealing bill is entered on the statute books.

Gov. Ben E. Paulen finished the passage of the new measure today, when he affixed his signature to the measure passed this week by both houses of the legislature.

"I have signed this bill, but seriously object to several provisions and trust the legislature will see the necessity of making the needed corrections," Paulen said.

"The license fee for handling cigarettes is unfair and unreasonable," he said.

"I can see no good reasons why cigarettes should not be advertised within our state."

"The penalties are entirely too drastic for the proper enforcement of the law."

KELLOGG IGNORES LIBERAL AGENT'S MEDIATION PLEA IN NICARAGUAN CIVIL WARFARE

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Secretary of State Kellogg decided today to ignore the note of Dr. T. S. Vaca, Nicaraguan Liberal agent here, proposing that Kellogg and Central American representatives mediate the Nicaraguan civil war. Kellogg refused to recognize Vaca's status or to give him an audience.

Vaca's note, "accepting the offer of mediation made by your excellency," followed a press conference in which Kellogg's spokesman said this government's good offices are at the disposal of President Diaz and the rebel "president," Sacasa, and that they should stop fighting and make a settlement.

Informal negotiations, undertaken by Rear Admiral Latimer, commander of American forces of occupation, with Sacasa and Diaz, have been no more successful than the earlier abortive peace conference aboard an American battleship at Corinto.

Vaca's note repeated offers made by Sacasa to withdraw if Diaz would do likewise, in favor of a neutral president. Diaz has stated he will accept almost any compromise with the Liberal rebels except resigning from the presidency.

The state department's position is stated authoritatively as follows:

1.—The United States recognizes Diaz as the constitutional president and looks with disfavor on alleged Mexican and other outside support given the rebels.

Will Not Recognize Liberals.

2.—The United States will not recognize the Liberals or any other movement which secures office through revolution, even if they conquer the entire country. It will continue to maintain U. S. forces of occupation in Nicaragua as long as fighting continues.

3.—Nevertheless this government deprecates continued Nicaraguan strife and hopes the factions will reach a settlement. It will recognize a government which is agreed to by both factions and which is given a constitutional basis by the congress.

What action Kellogg will take, if Sacasa himself accepts the Kellogg mediation offer as Vaca has done, is undecided.

Cloture Rule In Senate Resurrected

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The cloture rule, used only a few times in senate history, was resurrected by the farm and banking blocs in coalition today, to end the legislative jam in the upper house.

Cloture petitions were circulated and will be presented as soon as sufficient names are obtained so debate on the McNary-Haugen farm price stabilization bill and the Pepper-McFadden banking bill may be drastically limited.

This action came after Vice President Dawes, acting as peacemaker, had induced the two blocs to drop their differences over precedence and to work in unison again.

RAINFALL MAY VISIT SOUTHERN PART OF STATE

Showers Are Expected to Sweep Down from San Francisco Region

(By United Press)
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—The rain storm extending over the northern regions of the state was sweeping southward today, with the official forecast promising probable precipitation here to night and tomorrow, accompanied by a mild temperature.

Cloudy weather prevailed in Southern California last night and early today, with sprinkles in some sections.

Pomona was visited by a precipitation registering .02, while a light shower fell on Mt. Wilson.

MELLON-COUZENS WAR FLARES ANEW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—A second conflict broke openly today between two of the richest men in the nation's public life, Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, and James Couzens, senator from Michigan.

While a score of lawyers battled over the treasury's attempt to collect millions from Couzens, in connection with the Ford stock sale of 1913, Mellon voiced sharp disapproval of Couzens' amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill, under which Compulsory General McCall would be given final power to grant or refuse federal tax refunds. The treasury has sole power. The senate finance committee approved Couzens' amendment yesterday.

The plan is "not logical" and "won't work," Mellon said today.

U. S. MAY ISSUE WHISKEY PERMITS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—In the face of apparent failure of congress to enact medicinal liquor legislation, the treasury is planning to issue permits to distilleries to make prescription whiskey.

Permits probably will be granted to one or two distilleries, under authority already held by the treasury under present law, officials said today.

Fifteen applications for such permits have been received, but no action has yet been taken on them.

ROADS UNDER WATER

Highways in Sonoma county were under several inches of water in lowlands, while in the south peninsula district, in the vicinity of San Mateo and Burlingame, fallen trees partially blocked traffic.

While the high winds had abated early this afternoon, the weather bureau predicted northern California would get a plentiful supply of rain for several days yet.

Santa Rosa reported the heaviest precipitation in the state, 1.60 inches. Chico felt 1.37, Eureka, 1.18; Orville, 1.20; Red Bluff, 1.18; Sacramento, .16; Fresno, .14; San Jose, .20; Colusa, .64; Merced, .14; Orland, .78; Paso Robles, .13; Stockton, .14; Ventura, .12, and Coalinga, .04.

BRITISH HOLD UP DECISION OVER CHINA

Army and Fleet Enroute To Shanghai May Be Diverted to Another Port

Cabinet May Decide to Land Forces at Hongkong To Appease Nationalists

(By United Press)
LONDON, Feb. 3.—A decision by the British cabinet on the suggestion that the British fleet and army, now enroute to Shanghai, be diverted to Hongkong, in compliance with the wishes of the Cantonese Nationalists, was postponed today until tomorrow.

The cabinet, the United Press was authoritative informed, will meet tomorrow to consider this question. If the armed forces were diverted to Hongkong, they would remain there ready for action in case Shanghai were threatened with immediate trouble.

It was estimated that 20,000 troops were enroute to Shanghai or under orders to proceed there today.

Several Proposals in Mind

Sir Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary, and his advisers have had several proposals in mind, but it was said authoritatively that they favored the one which envisaged the diversion of the fleet and army. Such a scheme would require the immediate signature at Hankow of a working agreement with respect to Shanghai, which would obviate the necessity for further preparations for the defense of the international concession there.

If such an agreement were realized, Britain not only would be enabled to suspend preparations for the defense of Shanghai, but even to halt reinforcements enroute at Hongkong or some other British-controlled port even further away.

Safety of Foreigners

Britain all along has insisted that troops and naval units would not be required at Shanghai if the Nationalists were willing and able to guarantee the safety of foreigners there and the inviolability of their property.

The government issued the text of the proposals submitted for settlement of the entire problem of British Nationals in China. The proposals were:

1.—Britain was prepared to recognize modern Chinese law courts as competent to hear cases in which Britons were the plaintiffs and also to waive the right of a British representative attending hearings of such cases.

2.—To recognize the validity of a reasonable Chinese Nationality law.

3.—To apply, as far as possible in British courts in China, the modern Chinese civil and commercial codes whenever such codes were enforced in Chinese courts and on Chinese citizens throughout China.

4.—To make Britons in China pay non-discriminatory taxation, such as may be imposed on Chinese throughout China.

5.—To consider the application in British courts in China of the revised Chinese penal code whenever it may be applied in Chinese courts at Hankow.

6.—To enter into arrangements for the revision of the status of municipal administration of the British concessions according to the peculiar circumstances of each concession.

7.—To agree that British missionaries shall cease acquiring land in the interior of China and that Chinese converts to Christianity in the future should come under Chinese instead of British law.

New instructions on settlement of the dispute between Britain and the Cantonese Nationalists at Hankow, the United Press was informed, were sent today by the foreign office to Owen O'Malley, who is conducting the British negotiations at Hankow.

The instructions were based on the fact that negotiations at Hankow had not been broken off, but that signature to an agreement there had been postponed.

Would Remove Army Rule In Philippines

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Removal of control over the Philippines and other island possessions of the United States from the war and navy departments and establishment of an independent civilian office of insular affairs to handle them, is provided in a bill introduced today by Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio. This legislation was recommended by Carmi Thompson, of Cleveland, in his report on Philippine conditions, made in the special survey ordered by President Coolidge.

HASSEL TALKS ON MURDERING BY WHOLESALE

Killer, Facing Death in Electric Chair, Ready To Pay for Crimes

(By United Press)
PENITENTIARY, HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Feb. 3.—The penitentiary, which usually grips the hearts of murderers, was not manifest on the face of George J. Hassel in his death cell here today.

The confessed slayer of 13 persons—his two wives and 11 children—was not entirely conscienceless, nor was he optimistic. The thought of his electrocution, which is set for February 25, a few minutes after midnight, does not terrify him. He regards it as a matter of course, an obligation to society he must pay. He wants to go to the chair to pay for his crimes.

A correspondent of the United Press was allowed to visit the death cell here today. Hassel talked freely with show of emotion.

Details Whittier Crime

It was his only detailed account of the killing of his common law wife and their three foster children in Whittier, Cal., 10 years before he murdered his wife and eight stepchildren, last December, near Farwell, Tex.

A vulgar jest where there might have been an expression of remorse, a smirk where there might have been a tear, he talked for two hours of his wholesale slaughters, his impulses rather than motives for his crimes, his roustabout life that has blunted any fine sensibilities he might have had.

Death holds no fear for this man who has dealt it to two women and 11 children. "If you see any spooks in there, tell them I'll soon be with them," he laughed in farewell as the correspondent left to inspect the electric chair in a chamber adjoining.

In regard to the killing of his family on the west coast, where he lived with Mrs. Marie Vogel, he said he suddenly found himself choking her one morning after they had joked and laughed for a couple of hours.

No Reason for Killing

"If someone can tell me why I did it, I wish they would," he remarked, not as if bewildered but as if pleasantly pondering on the question.

He said he then choked the three babies and "buried them under the floor of the house before their bodies were cold."

Fear of arrest? Troubled conscience? He scoffed at the suggestions.

"I never gave either a thought," he said.

Two climaxes in warping his character he enumerated:

First, his service of two years in the Texas penitentiary when convicted at 19 for embezzlement.

Second, his estrangement from his first wife, for which he blamed her parents.

In both of his slayings, he said

Lisbon Government Takes Measures to Quell Revolution in Army, Says Official Communique

CLAMP CENSORSHIP ON NEWS

LISBON, Feb. 3.—Loyal troops attacked Portuguese rebels, near Oporto, this afternoon, the government announced. Colonel Amaral, commanding a detachment of loyal troops, was marching on Oporto, when he encountered a rebel column. The government statement said the minister of war had arrived at Aveiro, whence he planned today to lead an army against Oporto.

(By United Press)

LISBON, Feb. 3.—Revolution against the government began today at Oporto. The government proclaimed a "state of siege," similar to martial law, throughout Portugal. At noon today, the government announced that only a portion of the garrison in the district of Oporto had rebelled.

Oporto is the second city in Portugal in population and importance and is the capital of the district of that name. It is 175 miles north-east of Lisbon.

A cryptic government communique at noon said "the government took measures to suppress the revolution."

It was presumed therefore, that there had been fighting between loyal and rebellious troops at Oporto.

The Oporto revolutionists captured the minister of education, who was vacationing there when the rebellion began today. The government announced that troops were being concentrated to defeat the rebels. Telegraph stations were under guard today.

(The latest uncensored news from Portugal said several army officers a few days ago sent an ultimatum to the government demanding its resignation and the substitution of another government of a military republican constitutional character. It was possible that today's revolution was started by other officers with the same object in view.)

6 Moro Women Are Slain During Battle

JOLO, P. I., Feb. 3.—Six Mohammedan women fell in the short-lived Moro rebellion, in Jolo, it was revealed today, when the constabulary removed 35 bodies from the battlefield.

The women apparently had fought with the men in defense of the native stronghold, which was destroyed by mortar fire.

Princess Tarhata and her husband, Datu Tahil, leader of the defeated rebels, have eluded capture.

Executer of Publisher's Estate Defendant in Court Suit

(By United Press)
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Josephine Scripps of Miramar, Calif., has brought suit in federal court here, against Robert P. Scripps, as executor and trustee of the estate of her father, the late E. W. Scripps, to recover in excess of $6,000,000 she maintains is due her. Mrs. Scripps is acting as executor of the estate of the late James G. Scripps, who was her husband and the son of E. W. Scripps.

The petition does not state the exact sum, but specified it exceeds $6,000,000, while before the suit was filed a claim for $10,107,334 was presented to the executor of the estate and rejected.

The complaint charges that, in 1907, E. W. Scripps turned over management of his newspaper properties to James G. Scripps. Under this agreement, according to the complaint, James Scripps was to receive 30 per cent of the increased value of the properties. Later, this percentage was increased to 33-1/3 per cent, the complaint alleges, and finally to 50 per cent.

In 1921, James Scripps died. Up to that time, according to the papers filed here, he had received $390,000 in stocks.

That amount, however, the complaint alleges, was not the full share of the profits due James Scripps under the purported agreement.

The suit has been filed to collect for the estate of James Scripps what the petitioner claims is still due under the contract.

Mrs. Scripps is represented by Charles Evans Hughes, Charles Broderick and John H. Perry, of New York, and Leon R. Yankwich, of Los Angeles, as attorneys.

Ormiston's Wife Arrives In U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—Refusing to discuss her plans for divorcing her husband, Mrs. Kenneth G. Ormiston, wife of Ames Semple McPherson's former radio operator, arrived here today from Australia, aboard the liner Sierra.

Mrs. Ormiston, a very attractive woman, was affable when greeted as the ship docked by newspaper reporters.

"I will say nothing," she insisted. "My purpose here should be obvious. I am leaving tonight for Los Angeles, and will confer with my attorneys at once."

Frank O'Doul Is Sold to S. F. Club

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 2.—Frank ("Lefty") O'Doul, veteran outfielder of the Hollywood Stars, was sold today to the San Francisco Seals, William H. Lane, owner of the Stars announced.

The deal was a cash consideration, although Lane refused to divulge the amount.

O'Doul is considered one of the best outfielders in the circuit. He led the Hollywood club in stolen bases last season.

Lane announced that he expected to get a player from the Seals to fill O'Doul's place.

WILL BUILD HOSPITAL

FRESNO, Feb. 3.—Dr. J. J. McPherson, of the Catholic hospital here, will build a new hospital here, according to an announcement today by the Rev. J. J. McPherson. The new hospital, long in the works, will be built on the corner of Broadway and Broadway, and will be a 100-bed hospital.

A WHOLE CHURCH AT STUDY

The institution of a series of church training evenings by the First Methodist church, of Santa Ana, offers food for comment. The purpose is to bring into a church school, at mid-week meetings, all the members of the church. Class leaders have been elected to deal with specific subjects, so that everybody is sure to find a class taking up a line of study of special interest to that person. A variety of subjects is to be presented, with trained leaders in charge.

The plan of the church training organization seems to be a combination of Sunday school, which was originally designed largely for younger folk, and prayer meeting with the night school well known in modern school life.

The plan has been worked out with the desire of interesting the whole church. One of the slogans is "The Whole Church in Christian Fellowship" and another is "It's the Whole Church at Study."

Of course, the religious phase is to be emphasized, as it rightfully should be in order to get the best results from the project. The study, if one may judge from the subjects offered in the various classes, is to bring about a better understanding of practical church work. The series ought to bring about excellent results, not only for the church itself, but for the community at large.

PAYING FOR CAMP SERVICE

Methods of conducting tourist camps come in for discussion at this time of year. A great many cities and towns in all parts of the country now have such camps. Pennsylvania lists eight camps of this sort located in the open country. They vary in type from an open space among trees to elaborately equipped sites with running water, lights, stoves and other conveniences.

One question in regard to camps which is still unsettled is the advisability of maintaining them free or of charging a nominal fee for their use. Another important question involves the length of time any tourists may remain.

There seems to be a growing opinion that it is wise to charge a little for camp service. It seems to be human nature to have more respect for a thing that is paid for. There are fewer abuses of camp privileges when even as little as 50 cents is paid for a night's stop-over.

The director of Denver's publicity bureau says that after interviewing hundreds of tourists he is convinced that the fee plan is preferred by them. Denver's camp last season took in about $16,000 at 50 cents a tourist, and used the money in improving the camp.

A time limit on the camper is necessary in many places to eliminate not the bona fide tourist but the loafers who are simply trying to escape their just share of the cost of living by hanging out in free camps, only moving on when forced to by local authorities.

Touring has undoubtedly come to stay, and camping out along the way is steadily gaining in popularity. It is therefore only a matter of time and experience until the details of public camp management are successfully worked out.

RADIO LEGISLATION

Several million radio fans and all branches of the big radio industry are pleased at the prospect of legislation for radio control before the adjournment of a rather fruitless session of Congress. The House and Senate have agreed at last on a bill, and it is expected to go through.

It is necessarily a compromise measure. It may not altogether satisfy the radio industry and public, because it divides federal radio authority between the Department of Commerce and an independent radio commission. The commission is to handle the situation for one year, with jurisdiction over the granting, renewal and revocation of broadcasting licenses, with Secretary Hoover handling the routine administration. After that it will step aside and let the Department of Commerce do all the work, with the commission still existing as a court of appeal.

Many would have preferred the placing of immediate and final authority in Secretary Hoover's hands, where it was lodged satisfactorily before, until a court decision made a new law necessary. The proposed arrangement looks a bit complicated and bureaucratic. But the Senate seems determined to give as little power as possible to Hoover's department; and almost any legislation on the subject would be preferable to the present lawlessness in the broadcasting field.

The term of the commission is six years. By the end of that time everybody will know a good deal more about broadcasting, and if the arrangement proves unsatisfactory it can then be changed.

SAFETY THROUGH COURTESY

Courtesy is the best policy in driving. Cleveland has just observed a motor courtesy week, during which prizes were offered for conspicuously courteous acts on the part of automobile drivers. The result is worth thinking about.

During the week of courtesy there were only 18 motor accidents of any sort, but three of which were serious and none fatal. During the corresponding week in 1926 that city suffered 74 accidents, three of them fatal.

One can't help considering what wonders of safety would be achieved if the same effort toward courtesy were practiced on a national scale next summer during the height of the touring season—safety from minor accidents and safety from the costly ones that take human life as well as property.

THE READING SLEUTH

Franklin P. Adams, writing his "Diary of Our Own Samuel Pepps" the other day, told of his search for a certain quotation which he thought came from Stevenson. He concludes:

"I could not find it, but read all of Stevenson's poems in the effort to find it, and that was highly pleasurable, and I found again that a great part of the information I have was acquired by looking up something and finding something else on the way; and much of my reading done that way, too."

That is one of the rewards for looking up unfamiliar words in the dictionary, tracing allusions to their source, verifying a bit of history or geography or science run across in casual reading. Sometimes the hasty reader refuses to look up the thing he doesn't know because he imagines it takes too much time or may distract him from the book in hand. Thereby he loses a lot of real pleasure and shuts the door on new knowledge of interest and value.

AID THE PEPPER INDUSTRY

It is regretted that there is no legal way by which the county can appropriate money to aid in conquering the pepper weevil, which has done many tens of thousands of dollars damage to the pepper industry of this county. Federal interest already has been enlisted and studies that may lead to control now are in progress. State aid is being sought through a measure now before the state legislature.

This county, more than any other in the country, is interested in the maintenance of the pepper industry. In good years, it brings in fair returns not only to the landowners and tenants, but is the mainstay of a canning industry that gives employment to a goodly force.

Uniform Traffic Ordinance

Riverside Press
In considering the adoption of the uniform traffic ordinance recommended for cities of Southern California, the mayor and council of Riverside should give careful attention to local conditions; and it is assumed that they will do so. It is moreover true that an ordinance might be all right for a big city like Los Angeles but would be too technical and elaborate for a city like Riverside. The general idea, however, is a good one.

If all the cities in Southern California, outside of Los Angeles, could agree on a uniform plan of handling traffic, grief of the automobilist would be greatly lessened. He would not have to find out as he drove from one town to another what traffic provisions he would have to look out for. Boulevard stops, length of time for parking in the business district, regulations concerning speed near schools, "left hand turn" rules, speed limits in the business section and in residence districts, and other matters could well be covered by such an ordinance. The great majority of automobilists want to obey state and local regulations; but they do not like to be arrested in San Bernardino or Pasadena for something that it is perfectly legal to do in Riverside.

The state traffic law is uniform but it aims mainly to regulate the speed; other details of the control of traffic are left to local authorities. For the convenience and safety of all owners of cars, it is highly desirable that those regulations be as nearly uniform as possible.

The Southern California Automobile club has done good work in advocating uniform traffic regulations and in suggesting provisions of an ordinance that could be utilized generally by the cities in this part of the state. Unless there are local reasons that make some provisions of the plan unsuitable for Riverside, this city will promote safer and more comfortable auto travel by adopting it.

Illiteracy in California

Oakland Tribune
In its current number the Sierra Educational News notes with considerable satisfaction, as well it may, that during 1926 California reached the highest place of all the states in the union in the support of public libraries, the amount spent being $1.08 per capita.

In its process of "stock-taking," however, the journal deplores the fact that in the matter of illiteracy California, which leads the nation also, in support of education, stands twenty-second in rank. During the period 1910 to 1920, the editorial points out, we made practically no progress in the elimination of illiteracy. "Or to put it another way, the influx of population was so great that our percentage of illiteracy was not materially lessened. Today we have in California approximately 92,000 men and women who may be classed as illiterates. This is a decided blot on our much vaunted progress and democracy."

That there should be in this state 92,000 men and women who can neither read nor write is, of course, to be deplored. But as California is not responsible for the lack of education on the part of adult aliens, it can not rightfully be called "a decided blot on our much vaunted progress and democracy." And especially true is this seeing that means have been provided in this state for the education of those in need of it.

How About This One?

Fresno Republican
Groceryman F. M. Knight of Fresno submits this baffler for the consideration of Republican readers: A man bought five dollars worth of groceries for which he tendered a five dollar gold watch charm with the understanding that he would redeem it in a week or two he came in and gave me a twenty dollar bill and I gave him his watch charm and three five dollar bills. So he went out with twenty dollars and left me with twenty dollars. Did I get paid for my groceries?

RUBBER 'REDUCERS' ARE WITHOUT BENEFIT
In the craze for reduction which agitated most of the women of the United States during the past few years, many of them undertook all sorts of exercises, diets and the use of all kinds of apparatus to remove what they considered superfluous weight.

Among the most widely advertised articles were corsets and brassieres, made of pure gum rubber, which were supposed to be worn next to the skin. It was perhaps the notion of those who promoted these devices that they would squeeze the flesh into a more solid form, perhaps causing the body to eliminate the superfluous matter from inside. There is not, of course, the slightest scientific reason to believe that such apparatus could do anything of the kind. The chief effect of wearing rubber garments next to the skin is that they prevent perspiration from evaporating. Since the perspiration is rubbed into the skin, it is likely to produce irritation.

Some persons have severe irritation of the skin from contact with the rubber itself. The rubber garment does not increase the sweat, but simply causes it to remain on the surface. Certainly it does not cleanse the skin, but rather tends to make it accumulate deposits of waste products. The sweat regulates the temperature of the body by evaporation from the surface. It also keeps the skin soft by keeping it moist and well lubricated. Rubber garments prevent evaporation of the sweat, which produces laceration of the skin.

Certainly they cannot in any way aid the lubrication of the skin, since retention of salts and other substances is likely to make it drier and to cover it with crusts.

Learn to Practice Safety

Kansas City Star

The tragic accident at a Texas grade crossing last Saturday brings up once more the problem of safety in the United States. Each individual may have his pet idea as to why the accident occurred or how it could have been avoided. But it did occur; and it was only one of hundreds of traffic accidents that will be recorded in the year ahead.

The toll in motor vehicle accidents in the country now is about 24,000 a year, and grade crossing fatalities range above 2000 annually. How much of this sacrifice of human life is unnecessary? What may be done by the constant use of safety methods to reduce the toll in these and other types of accident?

A report of railroad accidents in Great Britain last year is interesting. Total fatalities of this kind were only eleven for the year. Yet that, the department of commerce states, was an increase over recent years. In 1925 but a single railroad passenger was killed in Great Britain, and the number of passengers carried by trains was 1748 million. In two previous years no passengers were killed. A record of that kind in the United States hardly is to be expected, in view of the extended railroad mileage and other conditions here. Yet much has been done to make railroad travel safe in this country, and no doubt much more will be done. In a recent year, out of nearly 175 billion passengers carried by railroads of the United States only 175 were killed. That is equivalent to one out of about every 5 1/2 million. Twenty-five years ago the hazards of railroad travel in America were double or more than double what they are today.

A rapid increase in the number of motor vehicles has contributed to the grade crossing fatalities of this country. These, with some exceptions, have mounted for several years. This phase of the safety problem does not exist in Great Britain. The seriousness of it may be reduced in America as crossings on main highways are eliminated and as motorists learn to use more caution in approaching the crossings that are left. Work toward uniform traffic laws in the states providing, among other things, for the licensing of drivers, may help toward reducing the general traffic accident toll. Education in safety also will prove beneficial. Altogether it is a case of learning, although at tremendous cost.

Worth While Verse

A CRADLE SONG

Sleep, sleep, beauty bright,
Dreaming in the joys of night;
Sleep, sleep; in thy sleep
Little sorrows sit and weep.

Sweet babe, in thy face
Soft desires I can trace, Secret joys and secret smiles,
Little pretty infant wiles.

As thy softest limbs I feel,
Smiles as of the morning steal
O'er the cheek, and o'er thy breast
Where thy little heart doth rest.

Oh the cunning wiles that creep
In thy little heart asleep!
When thy little heart doth wake,
Then the dreadful light shall break.

The Irvine company purchased 5200 yearling buds from Lambert, Adams, and Rice, Tustin nurserymen, for $4500. The purchase included 3500 Valencia orange trees and 1700 Eureka lemon trees and was one of the largest nursery sales ever made in Orange county.

Mrs. W. F. Kirtven was hostess to members of the Women's Missionary society of the Spurgeon Memorial church at a Chinese tea given in her home on Bush street. Stewart Smith of the Good Government party and Horace Stevens of the Independent party were both nominated for president of the student body of the Santa Ana high school.

Two hundred organized union labor men were present at a banquet given at the Knights of Pythias hall by the Painters' union. Members of the Tustin school board discussed the possibility of building a new school house as the present one is too small for the number of pupils. It was decided to prepare a statement to send to the voters in the district expressing the needs for a new building.

A gold watch stolen from the home of George Clausen, 1509 North Main street, was recovered in Los Angeles by City Marshal Sam Jernigan.

Your Income Tax

No. 15

Salaries paid employees constitute one of the largest items of business expenses. To be allowed such claims must conform closely to the words of the revenue act of 1926, which provides for the deduction of "a reasonable allowance for personal services actually rendered." The test of deductibility is whether the amounts paid are reasonable and whether they are, in fact, purely for personal services. Money paid an officer of a corporation for which no services, or services inadequate to the compensation rendered, is not deductible as "salary." Reasonable compensation is held to be an amount that ordinarily is paid by like enterprises in like circumstances for like services.

For example, an officer of a corporation received in 1926 compensation in excess of the amount ordinarily paid for services such as he rendered, and which bear a relationship to the amount of his stockholdings. The excess would not be treated as salary but as a distribution of profits upon stock, and the amount of such excess would not be considered a deductible item.

Bonuses to employees may be deducted by employers when such payments are made in good faith as additional compensation for services actually rendered, provided that, when added to the stipulated salaries the total does not exceed a "reasonable compensation."

INCOME TAX IN A NUTSHELL

WHO? Single persons who had net income of $1,500 or more or gross income of $3,000 or more, and married couples who had net income of $3,500, or more or gross income of $6,000 or more must file returns. WHEN? The filing period ends March 15, 1927. WHERE? Collectors of internal revenue for the district in which the person lives or has his principal place of business. HOW? Instructions on Forms 1040A and 1040; also the law and regulations. WHAT? One and one-half per cent normal tax on the first $4,000 in excess of the personal exemptions and credits. Three per cent normal tax on the next $4,000. Five per cent normal tax on the balance of net income. Surtax on net income in excess of $10,000.

tion for services rendered." When the amount of a salary of an officer or employee is paid for a limited time to his widow or heirs in recognition of services rendered by the deceased, such payments may be deducted. Salaries paid employees absent in the military, naval, or other service of the Government, but who intend to return, are allowable deductions.

For Better City Development

Kansas City Times

It seems likely that the recent decision of the United States supreme court sustaining the principle of zoning will mark a decisive turn in the development of American cities. Previous to this decision moves to protect property values and to bring increased safety, comfort and convenience to urban residents had been made by several hundred cities of the country. The rapid growth of the population centers in the last decade or so had made such efforts an imperative necessity. But as zoning incorporated, if not a new principle, at least an extension of an old principle with respect to property rights, it had been assailed in a large number of cases. It was held, in effect, that zoning interfered unduly with individual rights in the use of property.

Decisions of the state supreme courts in a substantial majority of cases, or in twelve out of a total of sixteen, had been favorable to city zoning ordinances. But the essential issue involved had not reached the United States supreme court until a test case arising from Euclid, O., a suburb of Cleveland, was laid before that body. The main question involved in this case, according to Alfred Bettman of Cincinnati, a member of the Hoover conference on city planning, "was whether it was constitutional to form, by zoning, exclusive residential districts into which industrial lands could not approach."

The court not only answered the question affirmatively but amplified its position by pointing to the legality of many other protective moves aimed at the security and general welfare of people in cities. Not only could districts be zoned against industries, the court said in substance, but against apartments and against other types of structures, whether intended for habitation or business use, that were not in reasonable harmony with individual family dwellings or that might tend to interfere with the proper use of them.

The decision, it has become evident, is far-reaching. It clarifies the whole question of zoning, virtually closes the door to litigation over it, and opens the way to a new era in city development. The decision means, says Mr. Bettman, "that where a city has a zoning ordinance the city authorities are strengthened in the enforcement of their orders, and that cities now without zoning ordinances may proceed more quickly to get them with the knowledge they are invulnerable to attack if properly drawn."

The margin between success and failure is after all very small and it only takes a small amount of unusual effort to change your balance from red to black.

SIT DOWN AND DELIBERATELY PLAN TO DO THINGS IN THE UNUSUAL WAY AND YOU WILL BE SURPRISED AT HOW EASILY AND QUICKLY YOU DROP OUT OF THE RANKS OF THE ORDINARY MAN.

Right and Polite

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

THE "why" of social codes is hard for children to understand and really it isn't to be wondered at. We teach and beseech them to tell the truth and be honest and then very plainly by our own actions show them that we have two codes—one for public display and one for private life. For instance, we treat a caller with exaggerated courtesy and after he's gone make remarks about his manners, personality and character. The other extreme of our conduct is the child's. If he doesn't like another he simply says "Go home, I don't want to play with you." The difficult thing for him to learn, and for us too, is to be courteous without being deceitful; to be polite without being exaggerated; to encourage and cultivate only those folks we can speak well of—and then school ourselves to say nothing about the rest.

EACH now and then Miss Phoebe Penn stops in to call. It's strange to her as it can be she comes at all. They say this she's an "awful freckle." "A regular bore." Yet every time The grow-up chime "Do come some more!" I wonder why We have to try To be polite. We could say plain, "Don't come again," And be more right! (Copyright, 1926)

Brigadier General Butler Remains at Post As Commander General of Base

(By United Press)
SAN DIEGO, Feb. 3.—The transport Chaumont, carrying 1300 marines for war duty in China, sailed at 1 p. m. today. Loading of men and supplies was completed shortly before 11 o'clock. Loading of supplies aboard the Chaumont proceeded without a stop since the ship docked at the municipal pier, last night, from San Francisco. Truckload after truckload of supplies poured on to the ship every few minutes and by the time the last of the supplies was placed aboard, all of the battalion of 1300 men was "set" for the cruise. Less than 100 men, barely enough to guard and maintain the property, remains at the base. Brig. Gen. Smedley Butler, who is to remain at his post as commanding general at the base, watched operations. It is expected that the Chaumont will pick up additional supplies at Honolulu.

TROOPS WILL LEAVE CAVITE FOR CHINA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—A detachment of 251 marines and 15 officers will leave Cavite, Philippine island, for Shanghai, upon the arrival of the transport Gold Star at the Philippines, tomorrow, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur is informed today by Adm. C. S. Williams, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet. The Gold Star is carrying 150 marines from Guam, under command of Maj. S. P. Budd. The detachment will embark on the U. S. S. Pecos, under Com. W. E. Clarke. The distance from Cavite to Shanghai is 1170 miles.

KANSAS REPEALS ANTI-CIGARET LAW

TOPEKA, Kas., Feb. 3.—Kansas' 20-year-old anti-cigarette law will be a thing of the past just as soon as the repealing bill is entered on the statute books. Gov. Ben S. Paulen finished the passage of the new measure today, when he affixed his signature to the measure passed this week by both houses of the legislature. "I have signed this bill, but seriously object to several provisions and trust the legislature will see the necessity of making the needed corrections," Paulen said. "The license fee for handling cigarettes is unfair and unreasonable. The penalties are entirely too drastic for the proper enforcement of the law."

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Secretary of State Kellogg decided today to ignore the note of Dr. T. S. Vaca, Nicaraguan Liberal agent here, proposing that Kellogg and Central American representatives mediate the Nicaraguan civil war. Kellogg refused to recognize Vaca's status or to give him an audience.

Cloture Rule In Senate Resurrected

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The cloture rule, used only a few times in senate history, was resurrected by the farm and banking blocs in coalition today, to end the legislative jam in the upper house. Cloture petitions were circulated and will be presented as soon as sufficient names are obtained so debate on the McNary-Rosen farm price stabilization bill and the Pepper-McFadden banking bill may be drastically limited. This action came after Vice President Dawes, acting as peacemaker, had induced the two blocs to drop their differences over precedence and to work in unison again.

RAINFALL MAY VISIT SOUTHERN PART OF STATE

Showers Are Expected to Sweep Down from San Francisco Region

(By United Press)
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—The rain storm extending over the northern regions of the state was sweeping southward today, with the official forecast promising probable precipitation here tonight and tomorrow, accompanied by a mild temperature. Cloudy weather prevailed in Southern California last night and early today, with sprinkles in some sections. Pomona was visited by a precipitation registering .02, while a light shower fell on Mt. Wilson.

MELLON-COUZENS WAR FLARES ANEW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—A second conflict broke openly today between two of the richest men in the nation's public life, Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, and James Couzens, senator from Michigan. While a score of lawyers battled over the treasury's attempt to collect millions from Couzens, in connection with the Ford stock sale of 1913, Mellon voiced sharp disapproval of Couzens' amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill, under which Comptroller General McCall would be given final power to grant or refuse federal tax refunds. The treasury now has sole power. The senate finance committee approved Couzens' amendment yesterday. The plan is "not logical" and "won't work," Mellon said today.

U. S. MAY ISSUE WHISKEY PERMITS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—In the face of apparent failure of congress to enact medicinal liquor legislation, the treasury is planning to issue permits to distilleries to make prescription whiskey. Permits probably will be granted to one or two distilleries, under authority already held by the treasury under present law, officials said today. Fifteen applications for such permits have been received, but no action has yet been taken on them.

Roads Under Water

Highways in Sonoma county were under several inches of water in lowlands, while in the south peninsula district, in the vicinity of San Mateo and Burlingame, fallen trees partially blocked traffic. While the high winds had abated early this afternoon, the weather bureau predicted northern California would get a plentiful supply of rain for several days yet. Santa Rosa reported the heaviest precipitation in the state, 1.60 inches. Chico fell 1.37, Eureka, 1.18; Orville, 1.20; Red Bluff, .98; Sacramento, .10; Fresno, .14; San Jose, .30; Colusa, .64; Merced, .14; Orland, .78; Paso Robles, .13; Stockton, .14; Ventura, .12, and Coalinga, .06.

BRITISH HOLD UP DECISION OVER CHINA

Army and Fleet Enroute To Shanghai May Be Diverted to Another Port

20,000 TROOPS ON WAY

Cabinet May Decide to Land Forces at Hongkong To Appease Nationalists

(By United Press)
LONDON, Feb. 3.—A decision by the British cabinet on the suggestion that the British fleet and army, now enroute to Shanghai, be diverted to Hongkong, in compliance with the wishes of the Cantonese Nationalists, was postponed today until tomorrow. The cabinet, the United Press was authoritatively informed, will meet tomorrow to consider this question. If the armed forces were diverted to Hongkong, they would remain there ready for action in case Shanghai was threatened with immediate trouble. It was estimated that 20,000 troops were enroute to Shanghai under orders to proceed there today.

Several Proposals in Mind

Sir Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary, and his advisers have had several proposals in mind, but it was said authoritatively that they favored the one which envisaged the diversion of the fleet and army. Such a scheme would require the immediate signature of the proposals submitted for settlement of the entire problem of British Nationals in China. The proposals were:

- 1—Britain was prepared to recognize modern Chinese law courts as competent to hear cases in which Britons were the plaintiffs and also to waive the right of a British representative attending hearings of such cases.
- 2—To recognize the validity of a reasonable Chinese Nationality law.
- 3—To apply, as far as possible in British courts in China, the modern Chinese civil and commercial codes whenever such codes were enforced in Chinese courts and on Chinese citizens throughout China.
- 4—To make Britons in China pay non-discriminatory taxation, such as may be imposed on Chinese throughout China.
- 5—To consider the application in British courts in China of the revised Chinese penal code whenever it may be applied in Chinese courts.
- 6—To enter into arrangements for the revision of the status of municipal administration of the British concessions according to the peculiar circumstances of each concession.
- 7—To agree that British missionaries shall cease acquiring land in the interior of China and that Chinese converts to Christianity in the future should come under Chinese instead of British law.

STORM CAUSES LOSS IN BAY REGION

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—Train service was delayed, basements flooded and highways blocked by fallen trees during a wind and rain storm in the San Francisco bay district, last night and today.

While a score of lawyers battled over the treasury's attempt to collect millions from Couzens, in connection with the Ford stock sale of 1913, Mellon voiced sharp disapproval of Couzens' amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill, under which Comptroller General McCall would be given final power to grant or refuse federal tax refunds. The treasury now has sole power. The senate finance committee approved Couzens' amendment yesterday. The plan is "not logical" and "won't work," Mellon said today.

As the precipitation continued during the day, reports of additional damage were received, with a probability the loss in flooded stores and residences, disrupted traffic and washed out highways would total several thousand dollars.

Highway Washed Out

A portion of the road leading out of the city south, near the Ingleside public golf links, was washed out and automobiles were diverted. Basements in the lower sections of San Francisco, Oakland and Burlingame were flooded. Heaviest damage was reported by the California Cotton mills, in Oakland, where merchandise was soaked. Automobiles were installed in the flooded streets of some East Bay sections, where drainage systems became clogged with mud. A landslide, near Redding, caused by the heavy rains, blocked main line rail traffic on the Southern Pacific.

Stores Burglarized

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Two stores in Riviera were burglarized by the same bandit early today. The drug store of T. G. Wedemeyer and the general store of H. E. Shapiro each lost $300 worth of merchandise to the lone bandit.

Would Remove Army Rule In Philippines

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Removal of control over the Philippines and other island possessions of the United States from the war and navy departments and establishment of an independent civilian office of insular affairs to handle them, is provided in a bill introduced today by Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio. This legislation was recommended by Carmi Thompson, of Cleveland, in his report on Philippine conditions, made in the special survey ordered by President Coolidge.

HASSEL TALKS ON MURDERING BY WHOLESALE

Killer, Facing Death in Electric Chair, Ready To Pay for Crimes

(By United Press)
PENITENTIARY, HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Feb. 3.—The penitent feeling, which usually grips the hearts of murderers, was not manifest on the face of George J. Hassel in his death cell here today.

The confessed slayer of 13 persons—his two wives and 11 children—was not entirely conscienceless, nor was he optimistic. The thought of his electrocution, which is set for February 25, a few minutes after midnight, does not terrify him. He regards it as a matter of course, an obligation to society he must pay. He wants to go to the chair to pay for his crimes.

A correspondent of the United Press was allowed to visit the strangest of all Texas killers in his death cell here today. Hassel talked freely with show of emotion.

Details Whittier Crime

It was his only detailed account of the killing of his common law wife and their three foster children in Whittier, Cal., 10 years before he murdered his wife and eight stepchildren, last December, near Farwell, Tex. A vulgar jest where there might have been an expression of remorse, a smirk where there might have been a tear, he talked for two hours of his wholesale slaughter, his impulses rather than motives for his crime. He boasted about life that has blunted any fine sensibilities he might have had. Death holds no fear for this man who has dealt it to two women and 11 children. "If you see any spooks in there, tell them I'll soon be with them," he laughed in farewell as the correspondent left to inspect the electric chair in a chamber adjoining.

No Reason for Killing

"If someone can tell me why I did it, I wish they would," he resumed, as he pondered on the question. He said he then choked the three babies and "buried them under the floor of the house before their bodies were cold."

Fear of arrest? Troubled conscience? He scoffed at the suggestions. "I never gave either a thought," he said.

Two climax in warping his character he enumerated: First, his service of two years in the Texas penitentiary when convicted at 19 for embezzlement. Second, his estrangement from his first wife, for which he blamed her parents.

In both of his slayings, he said.

Lisbon Government Takes Measures to Quell Revolution in Army, Says Official Communique

CLAMP CENSORSHIP ON NEWS

LISBON, Feb. 3.—Loyal troops attacked Portuguese rebels, near Oporto, this afternoon, the government announced. Colonel Amaral, commanding a detachment of loyal troops, was marching on Oporto, when he encountered a rebel column. The government statement said the minister of war had arrived at Aveiro, whence he planned today to lead an army against Oporto.

(By United Press)
LISBON, Feb. 3.—Revolution against the government began today at Oporto. The government proclaimed a "state of siege," similar to martial law, throughout Portugal. At noon today, the government announced that only a portion of the garrison in the district of Oporto had rebelled.

Oporto is the second city in Portugal in population and importance and is the capital of the district of that name. It is 175 miles north-east of Lisbon.

6 Moro Women Are Slain During Battle

JOLO, P. I., Feb. 3.—Six Mohammedan women fell in the short-lived Moro rebellion, in Sulu, it was revealed today, when the constabulary removed 35 bodies from the battlefield. The women apparently had fought with the men in defense of the native stronghold, which was destroyed by marian fire.

Princess Tarhata and her husband, Datu Tahir, leader of the defeated rebels, have eluded capture.

Executor of Publisher's Estate Defendant in Court Suit

(By United Press)
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Josephine Scripps of Miramar, Calif., has brought suit in federal court here, against Robert P. Scripps, as executor and trustee of the estate of his father, the late E. W. Scripps, to recover in excess of $6,000,000 she maintains is due her. Mrs. Scripps is acting as executor of the estate of the late James G. Scripps, who was her husband and the son of E. W. Scripps.

The petition does not state the exact sum, but specified it exceeds $6,000,000, while before the suit was filed a claim for $10,107,334 was presented to the executor of the estate and rejected.

The complaint charges that, in 1907, E. W. Scripps turned over management of his newspaper properties to James G. Scripps. Under this agreement, according to the complaint, James Scripps was to receive 30 per cent of the increased value of the properties. Later, this percentage was increased to 33 1/3 per cent, the complaint alleges, and finally to 50 per cent.

In 1921, James Scripps died. Up to that time, according to the papers filed here, he had received $890,000 in stocks.

That amount, however, the complaint alleges, was not the full share of the profits due James Scripps under the purported agreement. The suit has been filed to collect for the estate of James Scripps what the petitioner claims is still due under the contract.

Mrs. Scripps is represented by Charles Evans Hughes, Charles Brodek and John H. Perry, of New York, and Leon R. Yankwich, of Los Angeles, as attorneys.

Frank O'Doul Is Sold to S. F. Club

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 3.—Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, veteran outfielder of the Hollywood Stars, was sold today to the San Francisco Seals, William H. Lane, owner of the Stars announced. The deal was a cash consideration although Lane refused to divulge the amount. O'Doul is considered one of the best outfielders in the circuit and led the Hollywood club in hits last season. Lane announced that he expects to get a player from the Seals to fill O'Doul's place.

WILL BUILD HOSPITAL
FRESNO, Feb. 3.—The Catholic academy, at Notre Dame, Ind., Catholic institution, will build a hospital here, according to an announcement today by the Rev. J. C. O'Doul. The sum of $100,000 is being raised for the purpose of building the hospital, which will be named after the late O'Doul.

1000 ARE RESCUED FROM FLOOD ZONE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 2.—A drive for clothing for more than 1000 refugees, who were made homeless by floods in northern Arkansas, has been started by newspapers and charitable organizations here. Relief workers have rescued more than 1000 persons, who were marooned on high ground and in tree tops in the White river valley. Churches, barns, warehouses and public buildings in Brassfield and Cotton Plant are being used to shelter the homeless victims of the high water. Workers searched for refugees in houseboats in the lowlands, near Cotton Plant, throughout Wednesday night. Children, shivering from cold and starving, were taken from tree tops and second stories of houses. Three small children were found on a submerged bridge, standing in the icy water up to their waists. A levee on the White river, near Brassfield, is expected to break hourly and several hundred men were searching this morning for about 20 families, believed to have sought high ground in the valley below it.

Jury Vindicates Gladstone Name

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The name of William Ewart Gladstone, four times premier of England, was vindicated today of unsavory charges, when a jury absolved his son, Viscount Gladstone, of a charge of libel. The charge arose from the latter's angry denunciation of a writer who had charged the statesman with marital infidelity.

BANK PRESIDENT, CASHIER HUNTED

EUGENE, Ore., Feb. 3.—United search was started today for Henry L. Bergman and Miss Harriet Weatherston, officials of the State Bank of Florence, charged with embezzlement.

Miss Weatherston reported last night. Weatherston, officials of the State Bank of Florence, charged with embezzlement. A check conducted by state bank examiners reveals that more than $13,000 in cash and $7000 in travelers' checks are missing.

The warrants were issued, following disappearance of Bergman, president of the bank, and Miss Weatherston, cashier. Herbert Clark, state bank examiner, swore to the warrants. He arrived here yesterday and has refused to comment on the condition of the bank, other than to say that the state banking department has taken it over.

MUCH INTEREST IS MANIFEST IN CHURCH SERIES

Manifestation of interest in the series of weekly church training nights by the First Methodist church continued today with increased registration of members, according to Dr. Charles F. Seitter, pastor.

Stating that the church training will start Wednesday evening of next week, with repetition each Wednesday evening for eight meeting nights Dr. Seitter said the purpose of the school is to teach the latest methods of handling church and Sunday school work, and to teach the membership to better understand how to cope with the present day problems of the church.

Many interesting subjects will be taught, such as "Workers with Young People," "Junior Church School," "The Art of Story Telling," and "Community Forces for Religious Education." Popular lectures will be on the program also, such as "Current International Events," taught by Miss Jennie Lasby; "The Bible," by Dr. Seitter, and "The Forward Look of Christian Religion," by Dr. W. E. Edgins, pastor of the Richmond Avenue Methodist church.

Others who will participate as leaders and speakers in the course include Dr. Walter F. Dexter, president of Whitwell college; Dr. Lincoln A. Ferris, said to be one of California's greatest preachers, and Dr. Frank Luce, of Cleveland. Arrangements have been made for character-building Y. M. C. A. programs in charge of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. these being especially for girls and boys.

Announcing that registrations may be made at the church any time up to Wednesday evening, the pastor said the only expense would be that of purchasing books for specialization classes, and 25 cents for the dinners that will precede the class period each week.

Investigators have erred in theorizing that the killings were premeditated.

The hole under his California home, he said, he had dug two weeks before to please his wife, as he called Mrs. Vogel, who had received spiritualistic visions of a treasure buried there.

The pit of his Texas ranch, where nine bodies were found, was dug two months before, he declared, to be used as a storm cellar.

"It all seems like a dream to me now," he ran strong fingers through his blond hair. "But I know it's not a dream that I am going through that for in a few weeks."

"I'm not afraid to die," he said. "I could take a seat in there now as easily as sitting down in a barber chair."

"Are you making any last-minute fight for your life?" he was asked.

"The court appointed a lawyer to represent me and I don't know what he is doing, if anything."

He shrugged his massive shoulders in indifference.

"There is some talk he'll make an insanity plea, but I don't think there's anything to it. I was never sick in my life, never had a serious injury and neither of my parents was crazy."

He is still a brute of a man physically, if not mentally. This mass murderer, although his weight has dropped from 210 to 185 since imprisonment.

BONES HELD PENDING WORD FROM RELATIVES

WHITTIER, Feb. 3.—The bones of Mrs. Marie Vogel, of Pittsburgh, and her three adopted children were being held here today, awaiting word from relatives in the eastern city, before any action will be taken to dispose of them.

The four skeletons were dug up from the pit beneath a house here where Mrs. Vogel lived as the wife of George Hassel, convicted of slaying nine other persons and now awaiting execution in Texas.

The skeletons were recovered through directions forwarded here by Hassel, and police believe there is little doubt that they are those of Mrs. Vogel and her three children.

However, they will be held awaiting confirmation from Mrs. Gertrude Hoffman, sister of the slain woman, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Sirlin, Mrs. Vogel's parents.

Certificates stating the four had been strangled to death have been issued by Coroner Frank Nance, who announced no inquest would be held.

SCHOOL HEAD NAMED

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 3.—Willard E. Givens, assistant superintendent of Oakland schools, was named city superintendent of San Diego schools today. Givens will fill the place left vacant when William John Cooper resigned to accept the post of state superintendent of public instruction.

TALKS FEATURE SOCIAL WORK MEETING HERE

The Orange County Conference of Social Work held its monthly meeting last night, in Ketter's cafe, preceded by a dinner attended by 25 members and guests.

The new president, R. F. Mitchell, county superintendent of schools,
presided. Other officers are Mrs.
Edmund Snow, vice-president, and Mrs. J. H. Leebrecht, secretary-treasurer.

The speakers for the evening were Miss Beatrice H. Woodward, of the health education department, California Tuberculosis association; Robert Miller, inspector for the California Fruit Growers' association; Attorney Clara Cushman and the Rev. B. E. Garcia, pastor of the Mexican Methodist church.

Miss Woodward, who is spending two weeks in Orange county, preaching the doctrine of "Sunshine" schools, told of the recent national meeting in Atlantic City, N. J., which she attended.

Robert Miller, who supervises the work of a great many Mexican laborers, said that if the Mexican was understood he would co-operate 100 per cent with his employer.
He advocated the rule of paying the laborer a wage according to what he produced.

Mrs. Cushman has just returned from a visit to Old Mexico. She told of the conditions of Mexican miners and of the various labor laws of the country, which greatly handicapped the mine owners in ridding their crews of radicals.

The speaker touched on the dire poverty of the people in Mexico, although conditions in Pachuca were much better than in other portions, she said. She showed numerous pictures of types of people, houses and scenery.

The Rev. Mr. Garcia said that the Mexican should be handled through his heart and said he was not understood in America.

A general discussion of points made by Miss Woodward in regard to hygiene in the schools and by the other speakers about Mexican welfare work here, especially the housing situation, was held.

A membership committee was appointed, with A. M. Stanley chairman, who reported the new members as the Rev. B. E. Garcia, captain DuTemple, of the Salvation Army; Miss Helen Walker, in-charge of the Americanization work of the city schools; Mrs. Olive Lopez, Miss Helen McPeak, Mrs. Alpha Salverson and Miss Gretha A.
Clark.

Forty Women Meet at First M. E. Church

More than forty women met in the parlor of the First Methodist church Wednesday afternoon for the February meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society.

Mrs. Laura Brandeburg, leader for the devotional period, asked all to join in singing "The Church in the Wildwood." Mrs. Brande-burg then briefly reviewed the history of the country church and its importance. A brief prayer service was led by Mrs. L. E. Sturgeon, Mrs. Fannie Lash, and Mrs.
Laura Brandeburg. Mrs. W. B.
Snow, president, concluded a short and impressive service in memory of those members who within the past few months have been called by death.

Reports from group leaders and secretaries revealed many interesting activities. Two comfort tops which were donated for gifts are being finished by the Deacon-ness Home group and are to be given to the Deaconness Rest home at Huntington Beach. Another, the top for which was placed last summer in Daily Vacation Bible school, is to be sent to the David and Margaret home for children at La Verne. Mrs. Sarah E. Hutchinson, secretary of evangelism reported the meeting of a group for a short prayer service just preceding the regular meeting. Mrs. R.
I. Matthews, birthday secretary, called attention to a "jubilee" article in "Home Missions." Mrs.
George Milner reported 192 members. Mrs. Martha Brooks was appointed leader of the Friendly House group, and Mrs. Fannie Lash is the new temperance secretary.

Mrs. Matthews, a member of the program committee, presided during the program. The opening number on the program was a very beautiful solo, "God, and God Alone, is Love," sung by Mrs. G.
A. Tart, with Mrs. Matthews at the piano.

Mrs. P. A. Robinson gave a comprehensive review of chapter five of the study book, "A National Rural Church." She said the country people cannot organize the kind of rural church that is needed until the church at large affords them an opportunity to do so. A copy of a very beautiful poster illustrating the title of the study book, "Our Templed Hills," was displayed. Miss Blanch Collings gave statistics showing why the indians need more support than the United States gives to them. She told especially of the Yuma Indians to whom the auxiliary annually sends dried beans and warm clothing.

The auxiliary voted to hold the march meeting at 4 o'clock because of the church night program.

the meeting of the Anaheim post

Slavich, California state command-

LEGAL BATTLE OVER BUILDING IS ADJOURNED

The Norswring-Mitchell feud, centering about an agreement for the purchase of the Jergens Trust building, in Long Beach, was enjoying a temporary lull in hostilities today, evidence in the case being finished yesterday before Superior Judge E. J. Marks.

The court adjourned the trial to March 2, when arguments of counsel will be heard.

W. D. Mitchell, defendant in the case, late yesterday presented his final testimony in refutation of charges made by Knute Norswring, Fullerton rancher, who claims that he was defrauded by Mitchell in the deal for the skyscraper. Norswring is seeking to rescind the agreement of purchase and to recover $50,000, which he claims to have loaned Mitchell. He declares that the building, which he negotiated for, infringed upon ground that belonged to the city of Long Beach; also that he was told that it was constructed so that three stories could be added to the six already built, which statement was false, he claims.

Norswring had agreed to exchange three ranches and Los Angeles city property for the skyscraper, then known as the Mark-well building. Before negotiations were completed, he states, he learned that the property already had been conveyed by Mitchell to a Glendale man. Ultimately, however, it was purchased by the Jergens Trust company at a figure reported to be $300,000.

Without due formality of a divorce, it is alleged, Mrs. Diebolt
then became the wife of Anthony
F. Diebolt, complaining witness in the present bigamy case. They were married in Santa Ana on May 23, 1925, and separated January 11, this year, "when I quit her in Los Angeles," Diebolt said.

Diebolt said he hadn't discovered the bigamy until after their separation, when he happened to meet his predecessor, George B.
Cox, whom he regarded as a sort of Enoch Arden.

"She told me she had buried Cox in Los Angeles," said Diebolt.

In response to a query from the court, Diebolt said that he had separated from his wife "because she was a changed woman after making a visit to Tonopah," her former home.

In default of bail, Mrs. Diebolt is being held in the county jail. She did not offer any defense today, after being advised by the court that whatever she said might be used against her.

Held to Answer
On Booze Charge

Charles Gillis, of Cypress, veteran defendant in local courts, was held to answer by Justice K. E.
Morrison, of Santa Ana, today, in connection with a charge of sale of liquor, coupled to a prior conviction of a similar offense.

The charge is one of several months' standing, complaint having been filed last October, by M.
H. Nolan.

Gillis is accused of selling a quart of wine and a pint of whiskey on October 22. He is at liberty under $1000 bail.

Mr. Charles Trapp was honored guest last night at a dinner party given in honor of his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary at the home nearness of Valentine's day. Following the serving of the delicious dinner menu a huge birthday cake bearing 75 candles was set before the honoree who cut and served it himself.

The evening passed quickly with conversation and happy reminiscence of bygone days.

and Mrs. Starr of New York, who are house guests of Mr. and Mrs.
Trapp, Mrs. R. M. Schoepf, and Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Trapp and family.

WOMAN IS HELD TO ANSWER ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Sitting calmly, with a half scar-cistic smile playing over her face, Mrs. Eva Diebolt listened while two of her three asserted husbands accused her of bigamy. She made no defense to their accusations and was held for trial on the bigamy charge, under $1000 bail.

In the cramped confines of Justice Kenneth Morrison's courtroom, where the preliminary hearing was held, the woman sat so near to her "other halves"—or quarters, or thirds—that she might have touched them by reaching forth her hand. But she didn't reach—nor did they. She merely smiled that little, self-com-tempt as they brushed past her to take their seats in the witness box beside her. The smile was repeated occasionally as they told their stories. The two men gave their testimony briefly and somewhat hurriedly, with averted eyes.

Said She Was Divorced

George B. Cox, alleged second husband of Mrs. Diebolt, said that he married her in Goldfield, Nev., Feb. 8, 1920. She had told him that she had divorced her first husband, James Borton, in Idaho, but whether this is true is not known.

Cox and his bride lived in Tonopah, Nev.; Darwin, Calif., and, finally,
Los Angeles, where they separated, Cox thought, in September, 1921.

At that point, Mrs. Diebolt uttered the only words she spoke during the proceeding.

"It was in September, 1923," she contradicted her ex-spouse, who flicked.

After due figuring, Cox admitted that it was not in 1921, but denied that it was as late as 1923.
He insisted that it was 1922. He finally separated from the defendant when she told him to "get out," that she was "through with him," he said. Cox took her advice.

"Quit Her in Los Angeles."

Without due formality of a divorce, it is alleged, Mrs. Diebolt
then became the wife of Anthony
F. Diebolt, complaining witness in the present bigamy case. They were married in Santa Ana on May

CHAMBER BODY NOW PREPARING FOR ELECTION

In preparation for the annual election of directors of the Greater Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, the board of directors, meeting this morning, directed Secretary George Raymer to prepare a list of the membership and send copies to every member of the organization.

The members will be asked to indicate their preference for directors and a nominating committee will select the 15 men receiving the highest vote, and then submit the list for selection of five men to succeed Harry Hanson, George Duntun, Ray Chandler, Carl Mock and William Iverson, whose terms expire.

A. B. Roussele is one of the five men who hold membership on the board until March, 1927, but a successor will be elected because Roussele has changed his residence to Los Angeles.

Commenting on the approach of the election date, Raymer pointed out that under the plan members are given the opportunity of nominating men for the directorate, a democratic way of conducting an election, he said.

Indorse Artist Course
Hearty indorsement was given the proposal of the city federation of Parent-Teacher associations to bring to this city a group of high class artists for a course of six entertainments. Mrs. Fay R. Spangler, president of the federation, and Clarence Gustlin presented features of the course to the board and stated that tickets were not being purchased as rapidly as they should in order to insure success of the course. Tickets are being sold at $2.50, less than 50 cents for each entertainment, and Mrs. Spangler and Gustlin emphasized the point that the low price of the tickets was made possible only by the fact that the talent to participate in the various programs was keenly interested in education of the public to the better type of entertainment and the further fact that the artists were residents of Los Angeles. Most of the entertainers have national and international reputations.

Plans were discussed for having

Assemblyman C. D. Ball and State Senator Chester M. Cline meet with the directors of the senior and junior divisions for discussion of measures that have been presented to the state legislature. It is possible that the joint conference will be held two weeks from today.

Mrs. L. A. Proctor and Miss Josephine Durgan, both of Orange, representing the Orange County elistodof, requested support of the chamber in the program of contests in Orange county. The women, in effect, requested that the chamber underwrite a portion of the deficit, should the series of contests fail to develop funds sufficient to meet expenses. The matter was referred to the board.

Arrangements were completed today by county school authorities, in co-operation with the county health department, for the employment of a full time competent nurse to handle the trachoma epidemic among Mexican school children in La Habra, inquiries at the Hall of Records revealed. This arrangement has the approval of school authorities in La Habra, it was said.

It is understood that Miss Gretha Clark, graduate nurse, who has had considerable experience with conditions similar to those obtaining in La Habra, has been selected for this assignment.

Miss Clark's employment in La Habra will continue until the spread of the disease has been effectually checked and there is a marked improvement among the children now under treatment, it was explained.

THREE VICTIMS OF SHIPWRECK SAFE
SANTA MONICA, Feb. 3.—Suffering no ill effects from their hours of exposure, three victims of a shipwreck at Point Dume, 25 miles north of here, recounted details of the experience here today, while the yacht "Enterprise" was slowly breaking up on the rocks, a total loss.

Ray Bricker, one of the trio, was nursing badly cut hands, suffered when he climbed the 75-foot cliffs to get aid in bringing up his wife and Captain Gros, from their precarious position on the rocks.

Captain Gros and Mrs. Bricker were rescued with a horse-drawn cable, after spending the entire night on the rocks, when the "Enterprise" crashed in a heavy fog and several hours later broke in half. The boat was valued at $10,000 and had been leased for a fishing trip by Gros.

NEW STUDENT BODY OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED

New officers of the Santa Ana Junior college student body were installed at assembly, yesterday afternoon, when James Smith took the gavel of the presidency from Henrik Van Rensselaer. "King's day" was observed.

Van Rensselaer, crowned king for the last day of his rule, was forced to abdicate in favor of the incoming president.

Many unique duties were required of the faculty and students by the "king" during his exercise of regal influence. One of his decrees, heralded by Will Homan, clad in Scottish kilts, required McKee Fisk, educational advisor, to "tell how he got his start in life."

A tribute was paid Van Rensselaer by the incoming president.

New officers are James Smith, president; Len McIntire, vice president; Miss Elaine Smith, secretary, and Kenneth Schroll, treasurer. The executive board is composed of the appointive commissioners, Edwin Sipher, men's athletics; Muriel Smith, women's athletics; Miss Mary Elizabeth Rutledge, social chairman, and Clarence Trickey, foreman.

INJURIES FATAL TO AUTO CRASH VICTIM

After suffering for the past 36 hours from internal injuries received early yesterday morning in an automobile accident on the San Diego highway, two miles north of San Juan Capistrano, W. Domingos, El Modena laborer, died at noon today in the Santa Ana Valley hospital.

Domingos with three companions, Claud Estrada, Joe Aguilar and Mike Perez, were injured when the machine in which they were riding collided with a truck driven by James McFarland, truck driver for the Speed and Service Truck company at Brea.

According to a report filed at the sheriff's office today by McFarland, his truck was stopped on one side of the road when the car containing Domingos and the others crashed into the rear.

Reckless Driver Pays $250 Fine As Crash Result

A midnight automobile wreck, near Sunset Beach, cost H. S. Weaver, of 2735 Atlantic avenue, Long Beach, $250, when he appeared today before Justice K. E. Morrison, pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge and admitted that he had been drinking liquor.

"Our courts take the view that booze behind the steering wheel and gasoline in the tank do not mix. You're lucky it isn't three years in state's prison," the court told Weaver, in passing sentence.

State Traffic Officers Henry Aldrich and George Stinson arrested Weaver after the latter's car had collided with a machine driven by H. R. Cox, of 1478 Lemon street, Long Beach. No one was hurt in the wreck, which took place at 12:30 a. m. today.

RAISIN GROWERS WILL PAY DEBTS

FRESNO, Feb. 3.—The Sun Maid Raisin Growers' association, of California, will use the $5,500,000 it has borrowed from Dillon, Read and company, New York financial company, to "pay all the outstanding obligations of the Sun Maid Raisin Growers," Ralph P. Merritt, president of the organization, said in a statement here.

Sun Maid Raisin Growers was reorganized three years ago by Merritt and is now known as the Old Sun Maid.

"The 15-year program for payment of debts of the Old Sun Maid has been reduced to three years," Merritt said. "Untold benefits will result to members of Sun Maid and to every interest in the San Joaquin valley from this operation, which has turned slow and frozen assets into ready money. It is a triumph for co-operation."

"The splendid co-operation of Dillon, Read and company opens a new day for co-operative marketing and for the raisin growers in California. Sun Maid has gained further national recognition by this financing as a thoroughly sound business institution."

Non-Payment of Wages Charged

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—While officials of the White Flyer line, which suspended operations Monday, due to financial reverses, had announced they expected to resume service later in the week, further difficulties beset them today. James K. Nelson, president of the Monterey-Santa Cruz Steamship company, which is the White Flyer line, was being sought on a warrant charging non-payment of wages, following complaint of William Nitz, longshoreman, that the company owed $1020 to Nitz and 40 other workmen.

The Newport drainage district, D. W. Ellis was re-elected in division No. 3.

The Newport protection district re-elected A. E. Selvidge in No. 3; J. H. Pope in No. 4 and G. W. Bushard in No. 5.

MAN ATTEMPTS POISON SUICIDE ON 4TH STREET

Despondent, it is said, over his present financial condition, J. Higgins, Long Beach oil worker, attempted suicide by drinking a small portion of poison while standing at the corner of Fourth and Spurgeon streets, Santa Ana, at 7:30 last night.

Passersby found the man in a semi-conscious condition and called the police. He was taken into a nearby drug store, where an antidote was administered. He then was rushed to the Orange County hospital, where further treatment was given.

Higgins was released from the hospital today, apparently none the worse for his experience. He was held by police for investigation, but later freed and allowed to return to Long Beach.

According to a statement made by Sid Smithwick, assistant city marshal, Higgins told him that he, Higgins, was despondent over the fact that he had spent all his money and that a woman, with whom he had been associating, in Newport Beach, had refused to "stake" him. "I just wanted to show her what I'd do," he is alleged to have told the officer.

The poison was purchased in a Newport drug store, Higgins is said to have told Santa Ana officers. When released, he promised to make no further attempts at suicide, Smithwick said.

DRAIN DISTRICTS ELECT DIRECTORS

Elections were held yesterday in various divisions of the Newport protection district and the numerous drainage districts existing in Orange county. The election was exclusively for directors. Very few changes were made, the old directors being returned in almost every district.

In division No. 2, of the Delphi drainage district, Stephen Grisot was elected to succeed J. M. Jamieson, the latter having moved out of the district. Jamieson had been president of the board for eight years and he succeeded, eight years ago, the man who was elected to the board yesterday.

Prior to election of Jamieson, Grisot had served for 12 years as president of the board. Frank Planchon was re-elected in the third division.

In the Newport drainage district, D. W. Ellis was re-elected in division No. 3.

The Newport protection district re-elected A. E. Selvidge in No. 3; J. H. Pope in No. 4 and G. W. Bushard in No. 5.

2 Short Change Men Are Balked At Box Offices

Santa Ana theaters were made the targets for two "short change artists," who attempted to ply their trade in Santa Ana last night, according to reports filed at the police station. None of the attempts was successful, which was probably due to co-operation between the two theaters, it was said.

Police obtained good descriptions of the men who are alleged to have asked to purchase tickets, tendering a bill for a large amount. In the changing of money, an attempt was made to defraud the ticket sellers, it was said.

The men "called" at the Yoda Broadway and the West Coast-Walker theaters.

U. S. WILL ADMIT ARGENTINE GRAPES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The department of agriculture ruled today to allow the provisional entry of grapes from certain districts in Argentina, pending receipt of reports on individual provinces from the department's representatives.

In announcing its decision to allow the entry of early export grapes at the port of New York, the department explained that Dr. Max Kiehluk Jr., chief quarantine inspector at the port of Philadelphia, had been assigned the task of co-operating with the Argentine department of agriculture in a survey to determine the prevalence of Mediterranean fruit fly in the Argentine.

Kiehluk's first duty, the department announced, will be to make an inspection and report on the provinces of San Juan, Mendoza, Rio Negro and Chubut, which are isolated from known infested districts and which the Argentine government has declared to be free from fruit fly.

Senate Demands Data on Mexico

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The senate asked Secretary of State Kellogg today for all information surrounding enforcement of the Mexican land laws, as they affect American corporations. The Norris resolution, requesting the information, was adopted by unanimous consent after acceptance of an amendment by Senator Curtis, Republican floor leader, which would permit Kellogg to withhold the information if he considers it "incompatible with public interest."

Today the charge was reduced to "cutting in" and Sorben given until next Wednesday to appear in answer to the charge.

Weddings Receptions By Eleanor Young Elliott

Wedding Anniversary Of Three Couples Celebrated

Fun, fast and furious marked the merry party held Tuesday evening at the Scott Thompson home on Washington avenue, where a mock trial was staged which proved a riot from beginning to end.

Arthur McFadden acted as judge, Dave McBurney as bailiff, while Ray Millman in the capacity of clerk, called the case on docket.

This proved to be a highly sensational divorce suit with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Torrens as principals. As was afterwards brought out, the company had chosen this unique manner in which to remind the above mentioned principals that their fifteenth wedding anniversary had not been forgotten.

The defendants, Mrs. Joe Thompson, alias Slippery Sam, and Mrs. Scott Torrens, alias Convincing Kate, accused of most outrageous and unbecoming conduct were defended by Attorney Will Hatch while the plaintiffs case was prosecuted by W. W. Hoy.

A jury as nearly fit as could be obtained from such a company was impeached and witnesses were summoned.

The testimony of one Crew-so Robinson, otherwise known as Bert Porter, would have been of great help to the prosecution if it had only fitted together.

The veracity of Martin Blue-Black Warren was also seriously questioned and in spite of his good intentions he proved of little help to the defendants.

A certain Long Slim Ann refused to give her true name on the grounds that to do so would sadly incriminate herself.

Judge McFadden, who seemed to recognize the witness, gladly excused her. Many others were involved in the "notorious" affair, one in particular being the Rev. W. H. McPeak concerning whom scandalous disclosures were made if the testimony of witnesses could be accepted.

Lawyers wrangled throughout the legal battle that waged pro and con until the judge, in disgust, finally declared the attorneys disgracefully incompetent, pronounced the jury unfit and not legal, and straightway dismissed the case.

The evening's proceedings came as a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Torrens who together with Mr. and Mrs. Will Hatch had but recently celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary.

Each of these couples were presented with pretty crystal bud vases by the United Presbyterian church, who represented those present. Bridal cakes were also presented the honorees when delectable refreshments were enjoyed.

Mr. Paint Brush, alias Stewart Kennedy, star witness, for the plaintiff in the above trial, was especially remembered at this time by being privileged to sup his coffee from an old fashioned monogrammed cup. Cunning little rascals on each tray carried out the society's motif. More than 40 guests enjoyed the hospitality of the home. The appreciative reception given the entertainment attested to the success of this evening of rare fun so cleverly arranged by Mrs. Thompson and her co-hostesses.

New Pastor and His Wife Are Honored at Social

One of the delightful features of the social yesterday afternoon of the southeast section of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Presbyterian church, was the arrival of the new pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. O. Scott McFarland, who have just come from Homestead, Pa. They were accompanied by the assistant pastor, the Rev. W. H. Silverthorn and Mrs. Silverthorn and were introduced to the assemblage of fifty women by the leader of the section, Mrs. J. W. Kellogg.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Lewis Was and her sister, Miss Jennie Kroese at 701 Cypress avenue. The appointments were in compliment to the near approach of St. Valentine's day. Many hearts and Cupids added to the gaiety of the decorations.

Following the brief business session, during which a nominating committee was appointed to report at the next month's meeting, and 66 calls were reported, the meeting was turned over to Miss Kpese, chairman of the program committee.

All of the numbers were old-fashioned, the love songs and readings of "Ye olde love." Mrs. L. B. Pearl, accompanied by Mrs. Harold Pollock, sang "Once Had Sweetheart." Mrs. John McCloud read "Sparking on Sunday Night." Mrs. L. B. Hill's number was "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" by James Whitcomb Riley and she responded with "Ask Mamma."

A trio of high school maidens, the Misses Bonnie Sutherland, piano, Florence Sessman, violin and Dorothy Probst saxophone, played three numbers, including "Mellow Moon," "Cheery, I Love You" and "Won't You Be My Sweetheart?"

Following the program, the Rev. Mr. McFarland, made a brief talk to the members. Dainty refreshments were served on trays, the groups having been formed by means of red hearts bearing the birth month of the members. Green hatchets with conundrums created merriment, as did also a geographical game, with names of islands hidden in two-line rhymes.

Before the company dispersed the "Trinity" trio, composed of Mrs. John McCloud, Mrs. L. B. Pearl and Miss Roese, with Miss Lenora McCloud at the piano, sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

SHORT JACKET VOGUE ADDS CHARM TO SPRING MODELS

MONOGRAMMED FROCKS HAVE COME INTO THEIR OWN THIS SEASON AND SINGULARLY EFFECTIVE IS THE ONE SHOWN ABOVE. THE OTHER FROCK WAS CHOSEN AS MOST APPROPRIATE FOR COUNTRY WEAR BECAUSE OF THE HARMONIOUS COLORS OF TAN AND GREEN.

The sport costume has definitely settled itself in the mode and is now just as much of a fixture as is the evening or dinner gown. Sport attire is still casual in appearance, but it is no longer casually treated by designers and costumers. Now that French couturiers have definitely accepted it, the sweater, jumper and one piece sport dress is receiving the care in detail, the refinement of line and fabric that any elaborate frock receives.

For winter resort wear and for early spring, particular art has been lavished on color and material. Wool has exceeded everyone's fondest expectations. It is indeed a far cry from the unwieldy chevrons and tweeds of our youth to the cobwebby, velvety wool textures of today.

Wide Color Range
In color compass it is difficult to be specific because the range is so wide. Naturally much is said about blue because it is being revived, but in spite of its popularity blue has no monopoly. The rose shades as well as the deeper reds and paler pinks are very much in evidence at Palm Beach, and so is the violet mauve tone that is so marvellously soft and appealing in wool. Yellow is extremely smart.

The vogue for the short, unlined jacket plays right into the hand of the sport frock, and often offers an interesting opportunity for contrast—for instance, a navy blue jacket with a bodice of rose frock, or a silk frock with a short jersey jacket of a darker tone.

The tweed or flannel coat, lightly collared in fur or quite stiffly trimmed is a swank, narrow line affair this season that makes the harmonious wrap.

My own taste inclines toward pastel colors in sport attire. Because of the boyishness of line and cut, I like this gesture of femininity in color. Also I like some slight coquetry about the hat that is worn with the sport outfit—dent in the brim or some sauciness to a bow that relieves the seriousness.

Smart Silhouettes
Photographed today are two typical spring frocks that show the smart silhouette for golfing, tramping, and all out of door sports and reveal a hint of smartness and a sophistication that every modern costume demands.

Angora also in apple green as soft as down makes the sweater that is combined with the finely pleated poplin skirt with a border of green and brown stripes. This combination of green and tan seems the logical one for country wear since it is so harmonious with the background. For this I selected a hat of green Italian straw tucked at the right side and trimmed with green grosgrain ribbon. Very simple, but very chic.

Singularly effective and lovely is the monogrammed sweater in salmon pink basket cloth trimmed with pink crepe de chine of a lighter hue which also makes the pleated skirt. The triangular neckline enclosing the monogram and the triangular pockets are appropriate little touches that are not amiss on an outfit of this tender color. Adding a further touch of smartness to the costume is the close fitting pink felt hat with the brim of black felt that is trimmed with black velvet ribbon.

The sport costume must be in keeping with the general idea. My preference is for the small untrimmed felt or straw hat that matches the frock.

The only jewelry that is really appropriate is possibly one of the colorful slave bracelets, or a ring with some large semi-precious stone that matches or complements the color of the frock. Most women will not relinquish their

February Hints Many Social Gayeties at Country Club

February with its romantic Valentine day and its patriotic holiday, offers a simply irresistible lure to light-hearted folk to revel and dance, and Santa Ana Country club, well aware of that fact, has arranged some unusually intriguing social activities for the month.

First and foremost is the junior dancing party set for Friday night, February 11. Of course since the date is so near that of St. Valentine's day, the motif will be one of romance and gaiety, and surely the Queen of Hearts will reign. Dancing will begin at 8 o'clock and all the young people of club members together with their friends, are expected to be present. A small guest charge will be made.

The mid-month bridge afternoon will be on Wednesday, February 16, with playing to begin at 2 o'clock. Those wishing to lunch in the pleasant spot prior to the afternoon of bridge, may be accommodated. Attractive prizes will be offered for play.

On Saturday night, the nineteenth, will come a delightful function, a colonial dinner dance which is expected to call forth a fascinating array of colonial belles and beaux. Fancy dress costumes are not required, but many of those planning to be present, will shine in the frilled satins, soft fichus, wigs, powder and patches of that colorful period of our national history. His friends are hoping that Dr. James E. Paul will appear as the Father of his Country, for he made a decided impression at a colonial party given last year, by his handsome appearance and a pronounced resemblance to the immortal George.

Those who do not make dinner reservations and drop in later for an evening dancing, will need pay only half what the dinner reservation cost.

The monthly evening bridge has been scheduled for Friday, February 25 with playing to begin at 8:15 o'clock. Manager T. F. McGilvray has asked that reservations be made for this that they may have some idea as to the number of tables which will be needed. Non-member guests may be entertained upon payment of a small sum.

Young Around-the-World Travellers Are to Arrive Home Soon

Mrs. Mary L. Hillman of 828 North Birch street has received word that her son, Don Hillman and his pal, Robert O'Brien, who have been having interesting experiences in various parts of the world, including a shipwreck, were to have sailed from Marseilles, France, January 17, bound for Galveston, Tex., where they expected to dock February 17. The lads have been spending a week in France and along the Mediterranean sea, and on the day the letter was penned were leaving for Rome, where they planned to go to the Vatican. Don Hillman had a letter to the Pope from the Rev. Father H. Eummelen and Robert O'Brien one from Father St. John O'Sullivan of Mission San Juan Capistrano.

The boys are sailing home on the S. S. Edam, a Holland liner, and hoped to see some of Africa enroute. Robert O'Brien cabled to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will O'Brien, 1002 South Birch street, the date of their departure from Marseilles. The boys were charmed by the Riviera and the south of France, which they stated is very different from the north. Mail will reach the young travelers at Havana, Cuba, care of the S. S. Edam.

Many crack athletes are expected to journey to Texas this spring to compete in the Rice Institute relay carnival at Houston on March 25, followed a day later by the University of Texas relay at Austin.

Mrs. John Hanna to Be Speaker at Federated Clubs Meeting

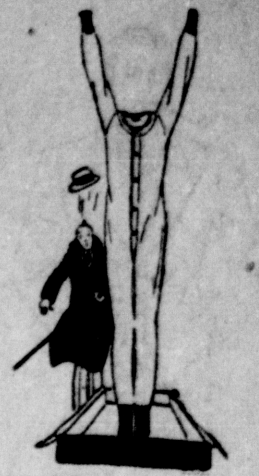

Mrs. John Hanna of Martinez, state chairman of institutional relations of the Federated Women's clubs, will be the principal speaker Tuesday when the Orange County Women's Federation executive board meeting will be held at the Los Alamitos Women's Improvement club.

The meeting will be an all day affair, starting with the business meeting at 10 o'clock. Immediately following the business meeting Dr. Harry Zaiser, superintendent of the Orange County hospital, will discuss conditions connected with the hospital and Sam Jernigan, sheriff, will tell of the managing of the new jail.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 for which a nominal fee will be charged. The afternoon will be given over to Mrs. Hanna. An interesting fact connected with her life is that she is the daughter of John Muir, poet, for whom a local grammar school is named.

Mrs. A. P. Nelson, president of the county federation, requested that all members of federated clubs attend the meeting if possible.

Differing from nearly all other colleges in the United States, it is not football but basketball and hockey that supply the funds for carrying on athletic activities at the college of the City of New York. The gridiron game was a losing proposition at City college last season, while basketball and the ice sports have been very profitable.

MRS. KAHN HAS STRONG STAND ON ARMY TOTAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. — Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, the congresswoman from California, isn't anxious for war, but she is hot for preparedness.

Uninformed women may have thought when she was elected to the seat long held by her husband that Mrs. Kahn, being a woman, might often rise in the house to sing that precious old ditty, "I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier." Great must have been their disappointment. Anybody who knows Mrs. Kahn and has observed her active interest in military affairs wouldn't be the least surprised to see this congresswoman, with her gray hair done up in the old-fashioned way, try to sneak into service in the next war as a drummer boy or a carrier pigeon.

Mrs. Kahn wasn't the sort of woman to tell the voters, after her husband's death, that she would carry on his policies and then remain forever inarticulate. Congressman Kahn was chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee and he was more than a figurehead.

Opposes Army Cut
"I could have believed that I heard him talking," more than one of her male colleagues told her the other day after she had delivered a strong speech against a cut in the size of the regular army. "It's a matter of both relief and sentiment," says Mrs. Kahn, admitting that it would be rather tough on a woman in her place to reconcile the two if they were to be found opposed.

"I always took a vital interest in our army through Mr. Kahn and attended meetings and debates where it was discussed."

She recalls proudly that Kahn was chairman of the military affairs committee when the strong defense act of 1920 was passed and was the committee's minority leader in 1916, during a Democratic administration.

Kahn played a prominent part in pushing the draft law through congress during the war.

In her last speech, she paid tribute to that defense act of 1920 and pleaded that the army be kept nearer its authorized strength.

"I have no patience with the theory that large military establishments are likely to get this country into war," says the California congresswoman. "Lack of preparedness, which has always distinguished us in past wars, has never kept us out."

Believes in Preparedness

"Washington was appointed commander-in-chief and began organizing his army more than two months after the battle of Lexington. The War of 1812 was declared against England on June 18 and organization of the army began on June 26. The first skirmish in the Mexican war was on April 25, 1846. The governors of Louisiana and Texas made their call for 5000 volunteers the next day."

"The first few months of the Civil war were spent by both sides in preparing to fight."

"Jefferson Davis called for 100,000 men on March 6, 1861, and Lincoln did not issue his call for volunteers until April 15, three days after the attack on Fort Sumter. The first call for volunteers for war with Spain came after we had declared and the subsequent military confusion and disorder are still remembered. The United States entered the World War April 6, 1917, without any adequate provision for an army and it required the draft act of May 18 to furnish the government with authority to raise an army to fight."

"Preparedness has never caused a war, nor has unpreparedness prevented one. On the contrary, unpreparedness encourages—and does not discourage—aggression."

Our Neighbors

POMONA—Action of the county supervisors in appropriating $50,000 to the Los Angeles county fair for the coming exhibition at the fair grounds here in September, was received here with hearty approval, representing as it does an increase of $40,000 over the $10,000 appropriated last year. The increased amount came as a result of the efforts of Supervisor Fred Beatty from this district, who put the fair before the supervisors in its true light, as a Los Angeles county fair, instead of a Pomona fair as it was previously considered. The increase is also taken as a tribute of the supervisors to the rapidly increasing fame and size of the fair. As a result of this action directors are making plans for enlarging the fair this year and a movement is on foot to provide permanent buildings to replace the tents that have been used in years past. This will come gradually, however, as finances permit.

CALIPATRIA—Extensive experiments in both rice and flax growing are to be conducted next year by T. J. Thompson, who has leased the 640-acre Globe Grain and Milling company's ranch northwest of this city. Thompson announced plans for the planting of 200 acres of rice and 20 of flax seed. Both are comparatively new crops in Imperial valley and the success of these plantings will be watched with interest. The Globe company planted a 40-acre tract to flax in Lower California last season and the product met with such success that it is planned to increase the acreage to 500 this year.

SAN DIEGO—Toll of automobile accidents in San Diego for 1926 was more than twice as large as the national average for cities of 100,000 population, figures made public today by Adolph J. Mende, vital statistics registrar, reveal. During the year there were 46 deaths here from automobile accidents and 1039 injuries from the same source. The city established a remarkably low infant death rate during 1926 when mortality figures showed that but 46 out of 1000 babies died. The rate is the lowest in the city's history and far below the average in other cities over 100,000 population, which have an infant death rate of approximately 72.8 per thousand. The birth rate during the same period shows a decrease. There were 521 more births than deaths during the year, the report shows. The number of children born was 2369 while the total deaths were 1848. The high death rate is said to be caused by persons coming here in the last stages of disease hoping for cure.

VAN NUYS—Two bales of rabbit hides containing about 1000 skins each today were shipped from San Fernando valley to James Clauson, Danbury, Ct., one of the largest hat-makers in the United States. The furs went from the E. W. Nygaard ranch and represent the largest shipment of the kind ever to go east from any valley point. Nygaard stated that orders have already been placed for 100,000 rabbit pelts in this section. He asserted that with the rabbit industry growing in San Fernando valley at its present rate, the area will produce this winter and spring about 200,000 rabbit hides, all of which will be shipped into eastern garment and felt markets. There are hundreds of rabbit raisers in the valley who will furnish their quota of pelts to make up these large shipments, he said.

RIVERSIDE—Riverside's January construction total jumped to the $250,000 mark, with the second straight big building day of the week bringing $27,778. The month's total is expected to exceed $275,000. Already January's total more than $50,000. The old month's record, $198,165, set last year, has been shattered. At the same time last year the building total stood at $170,000.

VENTURA—Kern county with its mice has nothing on Ventura. The only difference is that it's dogs here. Yes, there are "thousands of them running around loose in the avenue district, slaying chickens and rabbits and tearing up property in general, according to the complaints made before the city board of trustees by M. Rakekin and J. S. Rodriguez, rabbit and chicken raisers, whose pens have been raided by the canines within the last two weeks. In fact, several dollars worth of poultry and hares are reported killed in this way.

RIVERSIDE—Gardner Draper, Riverside manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, announced the letting of a contract for immediate construction of a two-story addition to the telephone exchange building on Orange street to W. J. Kethery and son. The addition will cost more than $10,000.

REDLANDS—California oranges should bring an average of four cents a pound to the grower next year, according to Charles M. Brown, leading independent citrus fruit packer of the south on his return to Redlands from a trip through the east. He made inquiries as to the amount of damage done to the crop of Florida citrus fruit remaining on the trees, and was told that the damage would run from 25 to 75 per cent. The indications are that it will be at least 40 per cent. He says that Redlands oranges should bring four cents a pound next year. His house paid the grower 3.77 during the past year, and all indications are for better prices.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — That phrase, "still in his infancy," can be applied to the motion picture industry no longer.

The films now boast a second generation—thus establishing their right to a place among the old institutions of the nation. Many who a few years ago were mere babies—as far as fame was concerned—now have children who are stars in their own right.

Outstanding of these youngsters is Dolores Costello, daughter of Maurice Costello, former stage notable who is now playing character roles in celluloidia's drama. With the exception of Syd Chaplin, Dolores is the biggest bet on the Warner brothers' lot. Her sister, Helene, also is under contract to Warner and shows promise of a great future.

Fairbanks Is Coming

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. has cut a niche for himself in reel circles. He is one of the best known juveniles on the screen. Some day he will be a popular leading man. Girls can be leading ladies when they are only 16. But the men must grow up.

Sam Rork, cinema producer, has been in every branch of the show "racket" for 20 years. Now he is starting his 17-year-old daughter, Ann, on the road to stardom. She already has had featured roles in two pictures.

When the blond or brunet question comes up, Rita Carewe always draws a vote in favor of the golden-haired maidens. She is the daughter of Edwin Carewe, prominent director, who has spent some years in the film factories. Carewe himself was an actor before he picked up the megaphone.

Lockwood Jr. in Films

Young Harold Lockwood is carrying on for his dad. At the time of the older Lockwood's death he was the most popular leading man on the screen. He made what at that time was considered a magnificent salary, but he left practically nothing. Mrs. Lockwood worked for years as a character player in order to put Harold Jr. through school. Last summer he started the climb which, he hopes, will take him to the heights reached by his dad.

WHEN YOUR FOOD FAILS TO DIGEST

And Gurgles up in Sour Risings or Heartburn

Try a little Diapiesin. Beats the world for stomach comfort. Hard to tell what upsets a stomach. Sometimes it's milk or fresh bread or steak and onions. Almost anything will cause gas, biliousness or heartburn. But whatever it is Diapiesin works like magic. It actually digests food, rests the stomach, absorbs the sour, acid, brashy risings from whatever cause. Even in the morning, if you get up with a coated tongue, feel nauseated and the thought of breakfast repels food, one or two Diapiesins will make you feel good and want to eat.

Anyone at the merc, or restaurants and lunch counters can fortify their stomach against trouble with one or two Diapiesins after eating.

BRIDGE ACROSS END OF BAY AT S.F. COMPLETED

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—Dumbarton bridge, a massive structure of steel and concrete spanning the lower end of San Francisco bay, the first structure to be flung from shore to shore of the greatest landlocked harbor in the world, stands out today as a supreme triumph of man over nature.

Wind, tide and mud were conquered in a 24-month battle with the elements in order to complete the $2,000,000 highway bridge, which covers a strip of water 1.2 miles wide. The actual length of the bridge, counting approaches, is 4.75 miles.

Completed a short time ago, traffic is already taking advantage of the short cut from Newark, on the east end, and Redwood City on the west. The bridge is approximately 30 miles south of Oakland and San Francisco.

Baffling problems had to be overcome in the task of construction. All equipment and machinery had to be floated down the bay from San Francisco and Oakland. Tides and winds offered obstacles every day of the construction period. Soft mud and clay at the bottom of the bay presented problems in setting piling, cribs and piers. High winds added to the actions of the tide and waves caused barge and scow crews to become seasick.

Nine 225-foot spans compose the bridge length. One of the marvels of the bridge is the 600-foot lift span which is exactly balanced by two huge counterweights of solid concrete. Growing shipping activity on the bay made it necessary to add the lift span.

The last six months of the job were spent in preparing the approaches to the bridge, which is paved, through six miles of treacherous marsh land and salt ponds.

ASIAN HORDES GIVE PROBLEM TO AUSTRALIA

LONDON, Feb. 3.—With the sailing of the Duke and Duchess of York on board the battle cruiser Renown to Australia to open the federal capital at Canberra, a new phase will be entered in the history of the British dominion which regards itself as the outpost of the white world in the face of the multitudinous expanse of peoples in Asia.

The recent sessions of the imperial conference, at which Premier Stanley F. Bruce was easily the outstanding figure, have brought the public of the motherland in closer touch than ever before with the problems facing Australia. Coincidentally, the manner in which Bruce, who has chosen to return to his country via the United States, has constituted himself ambassador extraordinary, for closer Anglo-American relations has served to link up these problems with those which confront America.

Question Regarded Seriously
Australia as a Pacific power has to deal with a question analogous with, but perhaps even more formidable than that of Asiatic penetration on the Pacific slope. The seriousness with which this question is regarded is shown by the fact that the commonwealth and its territories, as well as New Zealand, are specifically excluded from regions in which, under Washington treaties, the status quo as regards fortifications and naval bases must be maintained.

The commonwealth of Australia is haunted by the menace which its vast spaces present. It is a country nearly as large as the United States, with a present population of little more than 6,000,000. It is incapable of expanding by natural increase the population to a figure more nearly commensurate with its area for many years to come. It is incapable of absorbing white immigrants in very large numbers under existing conditions, due to the relatively undeveloped state of the country.

Dreads Asiatic Influence
It dreads especially an influx of Asiatics, in whose standards of life is really to be found the origin of the problem to which the slogan "White Australia," the watchword of the dominion's relatively tiny garrison is the sequel.

Australia is at present a country of high social averages. Its policy has consistently aimed first and foremost at a high average of welfare for its citizens, putting the distribution of wealth before the question of its production.

The problem for Australia today is to promote the rising standard of life and yet apply the new industrial methods of more advanced nations. The effort to maintain and increase this high standard has tended inevitably to retard the development of modern methods of industrialism, which alone could exploit the continent's vast empty spaces and remove the menace which their emptiness presents.

Dilemma Faces Country
It is a nice dilemma which Australia proposes to go on meeting by the simple expedient of keeping the door shut in the face of undesirable immigrants until, as the population expands, she is better able to develop her resources. How far and how long this "White Australia" policy can be maintained in an overpopulated world clearly depends most of all on the answer to the question, "How rapidly can Australia expand her white population and, especially, to what extent are her tropical regions suitable for white population?"

WATER CONCERNS TO BE PURCHASED

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—A plan to purchase the public utility properties of seven large California water companies was made known by the California Water Service company, when the concern filed with the state railroad commission an application for authority to make the purchases, along with an application to issue stock and bonds.

The seven plans the company proposes to take over are the Port Costa Water corporation, Chico Water Supply company, Fresno City Water corporation, Bakersfield Waterworks, Electric Water company, of Bakersfield; Visalia City Water company, and the Hermosa-Redondo Water company. Under the proposed stock-selling plan, the company would turn over $1,499,900 in common stock to the Federal Water Investing company, Inc., in exchange for optional contracts for the purchase of the properties. It also would issue and sell $6,600,000 in first mortgage gold bonds, $2,500,000 in preferred stock at par value, $1,000,000 in common stock, and would borrow $27,980 on notes from the Federal Water Service corporation. The total amount realized from this plan would be applied to the purchase of the properties.

STAGE and SCREEN

Norma Talmadge is to have "The Woman Disputed" for her next film. Joseph M. Schenck has purchased the rights of Dennison Chitt's play from A. H. Woods. The story concerns the war romance of a French girl and is based on an episode in one of de Maupassant's stories. Miss Talmadge will have the part portrayed by Ann Harding in the play.

"Revelry," Samuel Hopkins Adams' sensational novel of political intrigue, is being dramatized by Maurice Watkins, the young writer whose first play, "Chicago," seems to be well on the road to success. Production is set for the late spring in "The Night of Love," a film play filled with Spanish romance.

Gloria Swanson is looking for a good love story for her next picture. She has just finished her first United Artist picture. Miss Swanson plans to do "The Woman's Battalion of Death," an original story of Lenore Coffee, in the near future.

Daring plays and naughty revues haven't spoiled New York's taste for the plays and light operas of a more sedate age. Winthrop Ames has been packing them in with his production of "The Pirates of Penzance" and "Iolanthe." The public never tires of Gilbert and Sullivan. Helen Hayes broke all records in her revival of Sir James Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," much to the surprise of everyone connected with the production. She is on tour with the piece now.

And we are to have the second revival within two years of "Trelawney of the Wells" next week. Pinero's delightful play, which was revived by Equity in 1925, is to be presented by George C. Tyler this time. The producer has assembled a distinguished cast of old and new favorites for the play, including the following: John Drew, Pauline Lord, Henrietta Crossman, Estelle Winwood, Wilton Lackaye, Helen Gahagan, Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, Rollo Peters, Otto Kruger, Lawrence D'Orsay, O. P. Heggie, J. M. Kerrigan and Peggy Whiffen.

St. Louis College, in Hawaii, will spend more than $1,000,000 in new buildings.

Pentathlon is derived from two Greek words, penta meaning five and athlon meaning a contest, and was applied to athletic contests in the five exercises of jumping, discus throwing, running, wrestling and boxing, the last named afterward exchanged for javelin throwing. According to the old rule no one got a prize unless he excelled in them all.

Greek Children Send Gift of Currants To "Dear School Friends in America"

THEIR elders may engage in international disputes, haranguing over political issues and denouncing "foreigners" without any attempt to understand the other fellow's viewpoint, but nearly 10,000,000 children in fifty countries, members of the Junior Red Cross, are growing up free of prejudices and eager to be friends regardless of race, country, religion, or politics.

An instance of international goodwill which is being fostered by the Junior organization comes graphically to the United States this week from Greece, 4,000 miles across the ocean. Greek children, moved by receipt of Christmas boxes from America, have sent a gift of 48,000 half-pound boxes of the finest currants grown in their land, to their "dear friends in America." These are being distributed to schools in every State of the Union.

The Junior Red Cross is based on the ideal of service. It was founded during the World War and since the Armistice, nation after nation organized so that today the Junior ideal has fired the imagination of children on every continent. In this country it numbers nearly 6,000,000 school children.

One of the most appealing projects fostered by the organization is a program of international school correspondence, out of which has grown an exchange of gifts and portfolios between children in 45 different countries. The Christmas box project of American Juniors dates back to 1921. Each year 100,000 packages are shipped to children in European countries. These contain small games and toys, picture books and similar gifts, many fashioned by children themselves. A number of the boxes found their way to Greece where they were so enthusiastically received that an immense growth in the Greek Junior membership was stimulated. It was in acknowledgement of this gift that the Greek children decided to reciprocate with the currants, sending 5,000 boxes last year and the larger consignment this month.

Each box of currants is stamped with the Red Cross emblem and contains the following message from the Greek Juniors: "As a token of our devotion to the work of the Junior Red Cross and of our strong desire to enter into relations with you, no matter how far away you live, we send you this small present which you will oblige us in accepting."

CLUB ASKED TO SUPPORT MOVE FOR HOSPITAL

Asserting that death records reveal that in Orange county there have been, in the last five years, 770 deaths from tuberculosis, Dr. John Wehrly, program chairman at the meeting, yesterday, of the Kiwanis club, made an appeal for club support in urging the board of supervisors of Orange county to renew co-operative efforts with the boards of Riverside and Imperial counties for construction of a tuberculosis hospital for the care of tubercular persons in the three counties.

Adding that deaths in the three counties for the same period totaled 2300, the physician declared such an institution would save the three counties thousands of dollars each year and, at the same time, benefit the various communities by taking afflicted persons and possibly returning them to good health.

Dr. Wehrly's statements followed an address by Miss Beatrice Woodward, secretary of the California Tuberculosis association, who spoke on education of the populace along health lines as a measure for the prevention of disease.

The address consisted principally of a recital of features of a recent convention of the American Health association, held at Atlantic City, when 6000 persons were present to participate in discussions on public health. The speaker cited the attendance of representatives of a dozen foreign countries as evidence that these countries are interested in health work and that they are looking to the United States for guidance.

Miss Woodward stressed the value of sunshine and fresh air schools in the promotion of good health and pointed out that Los Angeles has 20 or more such schools. She directed attention to bills, introduced in the state legislature, designed to create such schools and to provide funds for their maintenance. She commented on the value of chest examinations in schools to determine the health condition of pupils, particularly as to whether there is a tendency to tuberculosis.

Santa Anans at Reunion of 91st Division In L. A.

Several Santa Ana veterans of the 91st division attended a reunion of the "outfit" last night, in the Pacific hall, Los Angeles. Euron Fitts, lieutenant governor, was present and addressed the association. Fitts is a former member of the 364th Infantry of the "Pine Tree" division. His talk was along patriotic lines. He pointed out the necessity of peace time service as well as service in time of war.

The principal speaker was Marco Hellman, Los Angeles banker, who furnished the entertainment, which included several vaudeville numbers.

Plans are being made, it was announced, to hold monthly meetings of the association, southern division, in Los Angeles.

Separation Suit To Be Tried Here

The suit recently filed in Los Angeles by Mrs. Minnie Jensen, for separate maintenance, in which she charged her husband, the Rev. N. F. Jensen, former Lutheran pastor in Orange, with paying undue attention to a certain prominent woman member of his flock, has been transferred to the Orange county superior court.

Papers in the case were filed here late yesterday, the Rev. Mr. Jensen having been granted a change in venue from Los Angeles county. Former Judge F. C. Drumm represents him in the action. Mrs. Jensen has retained Attorney Carl V. Hawkins, of Long Beach.

In her suit, Mrs. Jensen asks $100 per month alimony, $250 attorney fees and $15 court costs. She charges extreme cruelty, extending over a period of the last three years. The minister's conduct, she alleges, caused an investigation by a church committee, which resulted in a request for the pastor's resignation. This was given on Jan. 1, 1926. The Jensens separated on last March 8. They were married in 1906, in Geneseo, Ill., and have five children, the youngest being 17.

Police were called to the home of Park Ash, 622 South Main street, shortly before midnight, last night, to search for a prowler seen in the neighborhood. The man was not found.

14 DRAW FINES ON TRAFFIC CHARGES

One of the largest dockets to face City Recorder Talbott in several months was disposed of in police court yesterday. Most of those in court were speeders, arrested last week.

A total of $133 was collected in fines as follows: H. L. Finch, 519 East Fourth street, speeding, $10; Herbert Shield, 504 Eastwood avenue, speeding, $10; David Evans, 611 North Olive street, speeding, $10; John Gonzales, Talbert, no muffler, $5; Walter Markel, 1905 North Main street, no muffler, $5; G. L. Heacock, unnecessary noise, $3; Victor Wiese, Santa Ana, route No. 3, speeding, $10; Charles M. Bustillos, Garden Grove, speeding, $10; Charles Glenega, 1710 West Eighth street, speeding, $10; Frank Kenya, 1008 West Chestnut street, speeding, $10; C. N. Smith, 1020 West Chestnut street, speeding, $10; G. M. Dorman, 617 A-tessa street, speeding motorcycle, $15; William Thompson, 211 North Garney street, speeding motorcycle, $15; Spencer Stewart, Santa Ana, speeding, $10.

Mrs. M. G. Waters, Westminster, Dies

Mrs. M. G. Waters, 89, pioneer of the Westminster district, died last night in the home of a daughter, Mrs. A. B. Crose, in Westminster, following a stroke of paralysis.

Funeral services will be conducted in the Winbiger parlors, Santa Ana, at 10 o'clock Friday morning, with the Rev. R. A. Weld, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, officiating.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly. For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1876.—Adv.

Bi-weekly motor bus tours of Orange county, promoted by the Orange county chambers of commerce in co-operation with the Motor Transit company, are expected to result in the most satisfactory direct advertising Orange county ever had. It seems that the people of the east who have not actually been here know little about Orange county. Los Angeles appears to be the gateway to California. A majority of the people who come to the coast, buy a ticket to the angel city or make that place the objective of their motor tour. The motor bus tours, which will start this month, will be an inducement for people to get out into this beautiful country and see what it is like. The buses will leave from the heart of Los Angeles and will visit the towns and places the tourists really should see.

The initial trip will be made Sunday, February 13. Leaving Los Angeles at 9 in the morning, the tour will pass through Huntington Beach and follow the coast highway to Newport, where an hour will be passed in seeing the bay district. Lunch will be taken in Laguna Beach. From that point the tourists will see Santa Ana, Orange, Anaheim, Placentia, Fullerton, Brea, La Habra and Santa Fe Springs.

These tours will be self-supporting, no expense or guarantee of any kind falling upon the county. The various chambers of commerce will co-operate by providing suitable entertainment.

The whole plan is now in the hands of the railroad commission. The necessary approval of that body, which is expected to be given without delay, will mark the final arrangement before the bi-weekly tours officially start on a regular schedule, but the initial trip on February 13 will go through as arranged, whether or not the railroad commission has reached its decision.

Influence of the proposed Century boulevard, designed as a direct route from Los Angeles to Orange county and points south, is seen in the lively activity at Stanton, where the Western Art Publishing company has started work on an elaborate building program. Recent real estate transactions at Hawthorn also are said to have anticipated the development of the new boulevard.

This new road, which would virtually parallel the Pacific Electric tracks between Los Angeles and Santa Ana, would relieve the congestion of traffic on the principal highways leading into the city and would naturally be followed by large developments along the route. Prominent men in the towns situated on the proposed new highway are co-operating with the Los Angeles city planning commission in securing right-of-way and making other necessary arrangements. The Pacific Electric company is said to be taking a keen interest in these developments, on the theory that the railroad's interurban business would be stimulated by the building of community centers along its line.

START CONSTRUCTION OF $25,000 STANTON BUILDING

Work on the $25,000 building of the Western Art Publishing company at Stanton started this week. A large crew of men is busy laying the foundation for the building, which will be 100 by 100 feet in dimensions and one story in height. The structure is to be built of brick. Immediately after the building is completed the company will start the manufacture of calendars, art cards and art blotters. It is reported.

Approximately $50,000 worth of machinery is to be placed in the building, according to reports. Two hundred and fifty workers will be employed in the plant when it is completed.

The construction of the manufacturing plant is the first step in a big development plan which is being fostered at Stanton by the Barcom Investment company, Los Angeles. The company is backed by W. S. Durston, a chief factor in the development of Baldwin Park and El Monte.

The next step in the development of the town will be the construction of 40 new houses, two store buildings and a bank building, it is reported. The structures will be started as soon as the factory of the Western Art Publishing company is completed.

The change in ownership in which Ivie Stein will enter into partnership with Mrs. Sam Stein will take place on May 1, according to the announcement.

It is the plan of Mrs. Sam Stein and Ivie Stein to consolidate the stationery store and the photo store.

"The Sam Stein Stationery store always has kept pace with the growth of Santa Ana," said Ivie Stein this morning, "and has the reputation of being one of the best stationery stores in Southern California."

"We will endeavor to make the store supply the needs of Santa Ana in the future as I believe Santa Ana will make great strides in the next few years."

"It is our desire to have the store known for its courtesy, efficiency and willingness to serve and it will be our aim."

Under the new arrangement, Mr. Stein will have charge of the management of the business. Mr. Singer will continue in the stationery store until June 1, pending completion of all details incidental to the change in ownership.

WRAY COMPLETES PARK LOT SALE

With the sale within the past week of eight lots in his section of the North Broadway Park subdivision, N. E. Wray announced that he virtually had completed the sale of his tract, only four lots facing on Broadway, unopened at this time, remaining.

At the same time Wray revealed that he and his wife had taken up their residence in the Casa Del Rey apartments, north-west corner of Broadway and Washington avenue, and will give personal supervision of the apartments, which they recently acquired.

The sales the past week included the Wray residence on Broadway and the two lots on which it stood, the purchaser being Dr. James T. Drake. Six lots on Riverside drive were sold during the week, three being purchased by W. I. Gibbs, two by C. O. Smith and one by Ellison Honer. Gibbs and Smith already have started erection of residences. According to Wray, the buyers will build on all the lots.

"North Broadway park continues to be a point of real building activity," Wray said, in predicting that it would not be long until every lot in the high class subdivision would be occupied by a substantial and attractive residence.

FERTILITY OF WEST ORANGE DISTRICT SOIL IS LAUDED

Soil fertility unequaled in any other portion of Orange county is found in that section between the city limits of Santa Ana, Orange, the Santa Ana river and West Collins avenue and known as West Orange, according to officials of the Orange County Farm Bureau and the ranchers themselves. In no other section of the county is the soil of such depth and such fertility to allow the planting of citrus and walnut trees in adjoining groves with equal productivity, it is said.

The unusual soil conditions making West Orange among the highest producing areas in the county was caused, it is explained, by the sediment and silt deposits made by the Santa Ana river and Santiago creek. The West Orange district lies in the angle created by the converging of the two streams. When high water caused to overflow, the deposits of both were made in the same area of approximately 1000 acres. The intensive silt deposits made before the area was sufficiently built up to ward off the high waters created a rich sedimentary soil suitable for almost any crop.

Approximately 50 years ago, when the first pioneers tired of hunting gold and became smitten with the ranching fever, grapes flourished profusely in West Orange. Because of the difficulty in making raisins from the grapes, due to fog and high winds, it was decided to experiment with other crops.

A five-acre grove of oranges planted on property owned by the Cook Publishing company, of Chicago, fronting on West Chapman avenue, proved to be a veritable "eight wonder" to tourists and visitors.

Realizing the possibilities of citrus, the owners of present groves purchased the land unimproved for $125 per acre. Estimates on groves now range $3000 and up per acre.

West Orange was known as Pumpkintown for several years after the first discovery of the fertility of the soil was made. It was a boast of the residents that pumpkins raised in the district were so large that several men were required to elevate one pumpkin into a wagon. Even today, crops of unusual size besides oranges and walnuts are raised in the district. A sweet potato weighing 34 pounds was exhibited recently at the Orange Community Chamber of Commerce office by W. A. Dwyer. Later, the same potato was divided among the members of the Orange County Farm Bureau and farm advisor's office force.

The district is divided into groves ranging from five acres, the smallest, to 75 acres, the largest. D. C. Bradford owns what is thought to be the only five-acre tract and George T. Shaffer owns the 75-acre tract.

Many beautiful homes have already been built in the section. Several more are either under construction or planned.

Organizations of neighbors in the district serve to keep the community informed on matters of interest. The West Orange Farm Center, of which Andrew Smiley is president, meets monthly. The West Orange Tanning club, a social club for the women of the district, meets weekly. Children of the ranchers attend the West Orange school, in the Orange city limits. The West Orange P. T. A. affords an opportunity to parents to work with their children and their neighbors to the best advantage of all.

Most of the citrus acreage in the district is harvested by the Santiago Orange Growers' association, Orange. Nearly 40 growers in this district are members of the S. O. G. A., it is said. The Richmond Walnut association packing plant in Orange handles a large portion of the walnut crop grown in the West Orange district.

A large silver loving cup and $500 in cash are the rewards given the local branch of the Bass-Hueter Paint company for ranking highest in a recent contest conducted by the president of the chain paint stores among eight Pacific coast branches, according to word just received by C. H. Dahlem, local manager.

The Santa Ana store, which is the smallest of the eight competing stores, ranking highest, with 2100 points for increased sales, 200 points for stock turn over and 200 points for reduction of operating expenses. The local store increased its sales approximately $2500 during the contest. The yearly average of business done through the local house is $5700, according to Dahlem.

The cup is now on display in the show window at 312 West Fourth street. The cash prize was divided among six employees.

Other stores taking part in the contest and the points made by each were as follows: Hollywood, 1550; Oakland, 1500; Long Beach, 1475; Pasadena, 1225; Seattle, 1150; Tacoma, 950; Portland, 875.

JESSE ELLIOTT ELECTED HEAD OF COUNTY PEACE OFFICERS AT HUNTINGTON BEACH MEET

Jesse Elliott, constable of Santa Ana township, was elected president of the Orange County Peace Officers' association last night, at the annual business meeting of the organization, held in the city auditorium in Huntington Beach. City trustees of Huntington Beach were the hosts and city trustees from every incorporated city in Orange county were guests with the officers. More than 700 were present at the gathering.
A chicken dinner preceded the business session.

Elliott succeeds Herman Zabel, finger-print expert in the sheriff's office. Jack Tinsley, chief of police in Huntington Beach, was re-elected vice president. George Peter-kin, state traffic officer, received 18 votes for the office, to Tinsley's 19.
J. M. Pierson, of Fullerton, and M.
C. Nelson, of Santa Ana, also were candidates for the vice presidency.
E. E. French was re-elected treasurer, defeating Miss Cora Kurrie, of the sheriff's office, and Frank Lutz, of the Santa Ana police force. Vernon Barnhill, state officer, was named master-at-arms, defeating William Stanton, of Huntington Beach. The officers were proposed by a nominating committee, headed by Capt. Henry Meehan, of the state motorcycle squad. The new group took office last night.

Many Prominent Speakers
A program, featuring many prominent speakers as well as musical and reading numbers, was presented. A. J. Thedick, city attorney in Huntington Beach, acting as toastmaster in the absence of C. G.
Boster, president of the Huntington Beach board of city trustees. The speakers stressed the need of higher salaries for peace officers and commended the policy of courtesy adopted by officers in handling violators of the law.

Judge H. G. Ames, of the Orange county superior court, declared, in a short talk, that the duty of the officer of today was to handle the youthful offender in such a manner as to secure the proper psychological effect to make the person a law abiding citizen in the future. Ames berated the discorteous officer and declared courtesy to be the lubricant of modern business. He stated that the peace officer of today was a professional man and a specialist in his line.

That an officer should be an instructor of the people was the declaration of William I. Traeger, sheriff of Los Angeles county.
Traeger scored the practice of offering rewards for criminals, declaring that it often caused officers to withhold information which would result in the capture of some offender. Traeger also declared that police officers must be specialists in order to combat the experts employed by gangs of thieves which do everything from writing bad checks to committing

"The fence is the greatest contributing factor to crime today," Traeger declared. He stated that a robbery could be committed in Orange county and the stolen articles disposed of inside of one hour in Los Angeles. He also stressed the need of specialization by policemen in apprehending law violators, urged proper pay for officers and emphasized the fact that officers are "in the front line trenches" between the public and the criminal worlds.

Urges Move for Better Pay Z. B. West Jr., district attorney of Orange county, urged city trustees of Orange county to co-operate in starting a movement to secure legislation which would allow city trustees to raise salaries of city officers.
Judge R. T. Walters, of Los Angeles, delivered the closing address. Other speakers on the program included Sam Jernigan, sheriff of Orange county; C. N. Mozley, former deputy district attorney of Orange county, and C. W. Warner, city recorder in Huntington Beach.
D. Eymann Huff, prominent Orange county rancher, and Judge F. C.
Drummond, former superior court judge, were unable to attend the meeting. They both were scheduled to speak.

The matter of forming an Orange County Trustees' association was suggested by A. J. Thedick, but no action was taken on the matter. The plan was conceived some time ago by C. G. Boster, president of the Huntington Beach

BUILDERS' QUERIES ANSWERED

By Southern California Chapter, Associated General Contractors of America

Q. How many pounds of pure ground white lead will it require to paint a house three coats? The house is 26 by 36 feet.
A. You have not given the height of the walls to be painted.
The following is an approximate rule: Divide the number of square feet of surface to be painted by 18.
The result will be the number of pounds of pure ground white lead required to give three coats.

Q. Can tar and gravel be successfully applied over an ordinary composition roof?
A. Yes, if the old roofing paper is not in too bad a condition. You should apply one thickness of three-ply felt paper, then tar and gravel.
If the paper is in very bad condition remove and apply as for new roof.

Q. I put in what I thought was an exceptionally good foundation for a six-room bungalow a few months ago and now I find that it has cracked in several places. At the corners I placed reinforcing steel, yet this did not prevent cracks. The soil is adobe. Will you please advise me how I could have constructed the foundation so it would not have cracked?
A. Foundations constructed in adobe soil will invariably crack unless the foundation is taken below the adobe. This does not pay in every case, as it would be necessary to excavate to a depth of 10 to 15 feet or even more some times. By placing a six-inch sand cushion under and on each side of the foundation, cracks will be eliminated. The expansion of the adobe soil causes the cracks and with the sand cushion to take up the expansion, the cracking is eliminated.

WOLF! WOLF! POLICE WON'T ANSWER BELLS

The good old days, when the cook stepped out on the back porch and rang the dinner bell, have long since passed, but thanks to Santa Ana banks, echoing bell-sounds still vibrate throughout the neighborhood.

Have you heard the burglar alarm today?

No?
Then you should consult an ear specialist, for it's a peculiar sort of a day in Santa Ana when some bank burglar alarm does not suddenly start ringing for apparently no reason at all.

Many good coppers ran their legs off answering these emergency calls when the habit of allowing the bells to ring first came into vogue, but now the officers pay no attention to the sudden sounding of a burglar alarm.

When the burglar alarms first were installed in Santa Ana, uninformed men often were seen dashing madly up or down the street, guns in hands, their minds bent on but one thing, capturing the bandit who so brazenly was holding up one of Santa Ana's banking institutions. But like the dinner bell, that sort of thing is no more.

You've heard the story of the shepherd boy, who called "wolf!" Surely, well, these burglar alarms, or the way they are operated,
beats that story a hundred ways.

Willard Club to Hold Father and Son Dinner Meet

Much interest is evinced in the program arranged by the Willard Service club for the Father and Son banquet, to be held tomorrow night, in the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. banquet room, according to Principal W. S. Kellogg, of the Frances E. Willard junior high school.

Ex-assemblyman Samuel C. Hart-ruff, president of the Fullerton high school board, is listed as the principal speaker. Other speakers on the program will be J. A.
Cranston, city superintendent of schools; Will S. Kellogg, principal of the Frances E. Willard junior high school; Mac O. Robbins, Jesse Elliott, deputy sheriff, and T. P.
McKee, boys' work secretary of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A.

The boys' part in the program will be handled by Harold Harvey,

Jerry Tannenbaum, William Bee-man and Richard Robbins.

The Willard Service club is organized on the same plan as the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and the like. There are 25 members from among the boys and six members from the men of the family. All members must be of the highest moral character and must show leadership in athletics, music, scholarship and other school activities.

the Santa Ana junior college and the University of California, at 10

It was announced today by T. H.

The test also will be given for college students who have not yet who did not pass the special English X course will not be permitted to take the test, Glenn an-

Turn Carbon Into Power!

Annoying engine shocks caused by carbon are now completely removed. Vibration is reduced. Acceleration is quickened. More power is available on hills and heavy pulls.

The secret is Union-Ethyl, the new scientific super-fuel.

Ten gallons in your motor will tell you much more than we can put in print or any famous scientist can tell you. Make the test today. Learn why millions are using no other kind of gasoline.

CARBON ADVANTAGE SAYS AUTO EXPERT

By C. C. MOORE, JR.
Research Engineer

"When any type of gasoline is used in an automobile engine, a certain amount of carbon is deposited on the piston head and combustion chamber. This carbon deposit gradually increases until the final 'carbon shock' or 'ignition shock' becomes apparent. Many cases of so-called loose wrist pins, piston slap, worn main bearings, etc., are in reality nothing but this carbon shock.
"Carbon shocks are in reality detonation, the most harmful destructive force known to explosive engines.
"When detonation is taking place, it causes an increase in the rate of carbon formation.
"As the detonation becomes more severe, more carbon will be deposited, with a consequent greater detonation, etc., until it is practically impossible to run the motor without having the carbon removed.
"When using Ethyl gasoline, however, detonation does not occur, because Ethyl gasoline completely eliminates detonation. A more powerful explosion results also, because the compression ratio of the motor is raised by the formation of carbon.
"As a practical example, consider the following: A popular medium-priced car has a designed compres-sion ratio of 4.5 to 1. The piston displacement of each cylinder is 4.5 cu. in. The capacity of its combustion chamber is 1.5 cu. in. If a carbon deposit one-tenth of an inch thick is formed in the combustion chamber, this carbon will decrease the volume of the combustion chamber 1.5 cu. in., and the compression ratio will increase to 5.5 to 1.
"This raising of the compression ratio will increase the thermal efficiency of the engine about 15% and the volumetric efficiency of the engine will increase about 12%.
This means that the overall efficiency of the engine has been increased approximately 10% by the carbon deposit, provided the carbon deposit is removed.
"With ordinary gasoline under a heavy load, detonation will take place and this theoretical increase in efficiency will not be realized.
In fact, there will be a decreased efficiency.
"However, with Ethyl gasoline, the full theoretical efficiency is immediately realized. The motorist will notice increased power on hills and under heavy loads, greater maximum speed and a quicker acceleration in traffic.
"Thus with Ethyl, carbon is actually utilized in developing more power and smoother engine performance.
"Only two points of caution would I advise.
"First. Be sure that you are using genuine Ethyl gasoline in your car. Many imitations of Ethyl are on the market. But not one of these imitations will suppress detonation. My dynamometer tests have proved this fact.
"Second. When you fill with Ethyl gasoline make a slight adjustment of your carburetor. Proper attention to this one point alone will assure you of getting the maximum benefit from the Ethyl fuel."

WITH ordinary motor fuel, carbon causes "engine shocks" and a consequent loss of power.
Union-Ethyl, however, completely eliminates these shocks.

With this super-gasoline, carbon actually increases instead of lessens power.

Highly carbonized motors run better with Union-Ethyl gasoline than carbon free motors without it.
Carbon in cylinders is, therefore, now an advantage rather than a fault.

Have Your Carburetor Checked

Many motorists find that they get even greater power and mileage from Union-Ethyl gasoline by making a slight adjustment in their carburetor and spark control.

When you fill today with Union-Ethyl, we suggest you have your carburetor adjustment checked. Then you'll be sure to enjoy the maximum benefits from this marvelous motor fuel.

Vibration is minimized, often eliminated entirely, giving a smoother-running motor.

Try Union-Ethyl Today

There are several so-called "anti-knock" gasolines, but there is nothing else like Union-Ethyl. Nothing so effective. It is the last scientific word in motor fuel development.

For identification purposes it is colored red, but the color has nothing to do with its effectiveness.

You owe it to yourself to make a test.

Get ten gallons today wherever you see the Union-Ethyl sign.

First drain your tank of old fuels, refill with Union-Ethyl, then check your carburetor to make sure you are getting maximum efficiency.

Soon you'll be turning carbon into added power. You'll be enjoying a smoother, sweeter, swifter, more silent motor than you've ever had before. And with that experience, a new joy, a new thrill will come to motoring.

And the color has nothing to do with the quality

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Nathan Forrest

Sketches By Kroesen
Synopsis By Braucher

Enraged at Forrest's defeat of Sturgis' forces, General Sherman sent Generals Smith and Mower, with 15,000 men against him. The odds were too great and Forrest knew it. Withdrawing, he conceived a raid on Memphis. During the march to Memphis, Forrest's men often built bridges of grapevines and the floors of darkies' cabins.

It was after midnight when Forrest marched into the heart of Memphis. Three federal generals escaped by leaping from windows.

The attack on Memphis brought General Smith back from his assignment with Sherman. Then Forrest raced after Sherman again.

At Athens, Ala., Forrest forced surrender of a strong garrison by his usual trick of scattering his men to make his force seem larger. At Johnsonville, Tenn., he destroyed millions of dollars worth of supplies, capturing several gunboats. But from Virginia came news of Lee's plight that spelled the wane of Confederate hopes.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Just when the moon was rising high, and darkness spread across the sky, the Tinymites all figured that they'd have to ride all night. It didn't seem that they could make the whaleback trip and stay awake, but there was nothing else to do since land was not in sight.

And then a startling thing took place. The whale just seemed to stop its race, and all the Tinymites wondered what was due to happen next. Another spout of water rose and drenched the little fellows' clothes. The actions of the monster had the Tinymites quite perplexed.

The whale then took a sudden flop. Its great big head just seemed to drop and in the air its tail flew high and flapped around like mad. One moment more and down it went. The Tinymites were quickly sent a flying in the open. Such a thrill they'd never had.

The whale, of course, was out of sight, and every little Tinymite was floundering in the water, trying to reach their little boat. Alas, this was their only hope. "Twas well that they'd hung to the rope that pulled the boat along behind and kept the thing afloat."

Wee Scouty finally reached the craft, and as he climbed aboard, he laughed. The thrill had struck him funny and he couldn't keep it in. And then he heard the others shout "Hey, lend a hand and help us out. We're getting tired of swimming and it's time you pull us in."

So Scouty started paddling fast, and working hard until, at last, he had the Tinymites in the boat, a kindly thing to do. Thank goodness we are safe tonight," said funny Clowny Tinymite. And then the bunch was so tired out, they slept the whole night through.

BEAUTY CHATS

THE CHIN LINE

As far as treating the chin is concerned, I think it has been proved that two great things are, slapping and ice rubs. I know this sounds funny; how can slapping the chin make it prettier? This is the answer—

When you begin to get fat, or when you begin to get old, which is an equal tragedy from the point of view of a lover of beauty, the chin line sags. If it is fat, it means that layer after layer of soft flesh is creeping under the skin, stretching the skin of course. In time, a large pocket of it will collect there—the surplus flesh you are letting your body acquire will spread itself down the back of the neck, around the upper part of the ribs, the upper arms, the waist and hips, bulging the body beyond attractive proportions, spoiling every pretty line of it, and particularly, ruining the profile by making this a slanting line from chin point to neck. If you are getting old, the weakening muscles sag, and the effect is almost the same.

Slapping does two things. If there is surplus fat, it breaks it up and lets the blood carry it away to some other part of the body. If the muscles are sagging, it stimulates them and strengthens them. If you happen to be a strong and hardy type, you'll not lose your chin line until you are quite middle aged, even if you do nothing about it, because your muscles are firm. If you are delicate, you'll lose it early.

Beauty shops often sell rubber

"patters," round flat rubber disks on a metal wire handle, which can be slapped against the chin. These are very good. They cost around $2.50. But you can get the same effect if you will take the back of the four fingers of your right hand, and slap under the chin with them, holding the fingers rigid and keeping the head in normal position, without stretching the chin out. Try this for ten minutes a day, slapping firmly, and do this every day if you are losing your chin line. Follow by an ice rub lasting a minute or two.

Black Eyes—A red nose and an oily skin usually are seen together. The cause for both these annoyances is poor elimination, and you will have to correct the trouble at the source and not through anything you do to the skin or the nose. Try again with your breakfast cereal as this will cleanse the system without acting as an irritant, such as any act of purging will do.

Eat less of all oily foods, and eat less of all sweets or other rich foods. Drink at least a quart of water between meals for a time. Your skin will improve daily if you can keep your digestive tract in perfect condition.

The Woman's Day

BY ALLENE SUMNER

We met for lunch the other day, three of us who once upon a time made popcorn balls at one another's homes after school, and slid down cellar doors together. One of us was married, and, of course, to the rest of us, was not working. One of us was an advertising copy writer, and one of us was me. You can write your own title.

"But where's Alice?" I asked Grace, the copy writer, who should know Alice's ways and schedule, if anyone should.

"Oh, Alice is too busy with her list this noon," came the answer, looked puzzled. But the story was soon told me over the fried scallops.

engraved Christmas cards, flower bulbs." Only Alice's list runs much longer, the girls informed me, and as soon as she crosses off "I yd. brown velvet ribbon," she adds, "2 yds. orange beading."

"I'm Going 'Listing'" "I'm through calling her for lunch," said Grace. "It's always, 'Oh, I just can't today. I have so many things to see to,' and if she does come, she might just as well not, for there's a far-away look on her face, and she literally counts the seconds, and can hardly stand it until the check comes and she can run away for a few minutes on her 'list.' It's an obsession with her. Do you know I think that Alice is scared to death for fear that 'list' will give out, and she'll be left with some leisure on her hands and not know what to do with it?"

What Do I Do Now? I gazed at Grace admiringly, scallop poised in air. "There are times, my child," I murmured, "when you do proud credit to the friends of your youth. You've been thinking, little one, else where the cryptic utterance?"

I think that the tale of friend Alice and her 'list' and friend Grace's wise comment on it, sums up a rather general situation—if not literally, figuratively—the situation of hordes of women keeping busy with petty detail in order that they may not draw the blank of leisure and not know what to do with it.

OKMULGEE, Okla., Feb. 3.—"She was his queen in calico, he was her bashful barefoot beau"—and today they entertain the grandees of the nation.

Senator W. B. Pine of Oklahoma, and Laura Hamilton Pine may lay claim to a typical romance. All the ingredients are present—poverty-stricken childhood, little red schoolhouse, love letters on slates, and a small town wedding, followed by a rapid rise to fame and fortune.

Out of Poverty

Oklahoma's senior senator and his wife are living examples of what brains and grit will buy in a democracy. Out of poverty and an uncouth background, they have climbed to wealth, culture and prestige, through the stubborn will to succeed.

Their love affair dates from a September day in a country schoolhouse near the little town of Naples, Ill. Laura Hamilton, in a brand new gingham pinafore, saw Billy Pine washing blackboards with a fine, sweeping gesture, and a prodigious splashing of his sponge.

Laura had other beaux, and Billy, out of spite, sometimes took other girls to church. But nobody doubted that they were meant for each other in the end.

The young man left Naples to take up a job selling farm machinery for an eastern firm. Laura drooped and moped. The town clerk was always sure of a blush from her when he passed out the envelopes from towns along Pine's route.

In Wichita, Kansas, the young salesman saw the first outbreak of the oil craze, and plunged in. Shrewdness and good fortune turned the trick for him. And today he is among the "black gold millionaires" of the southwest.

Out to Oklahoma

Laura Hamilton prepared her trousseau. On June 18, 1912, the wedding took place in the little home town church, and the bridegroom carried his bride away to the little cottage he had bought in Okmulgee, Oklahoma.

Having ventured once to help Billy Pine, Lady Luck continued to smile upon him. His oil interests expanded—proved to be solid gold. His popularity in the neighborhood increased, and politics beckoned.

In Nov., 1924, he was elected to the United States senate by a majority of 145,000.

If the whispers of "Pine for president" grow louder, Oklahoma will throw its cap in the air and slap him on the back—whether it votes solidly for him or not.

SALAD DRESSINGS

Never pour the salad dressing over a salad until you are just ready to serve them. After you have prepared French dressing, it should be kept very cold—some cooks place it on ice, others put a chunk of ice right in the dressing.

WATCHING FLOWER MOVING PICTURES

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n.

Nature is a moving picture. The motion, of course, is so slow in most instances that only with the greatest patience can one note any progress in the development of the flower, except as from day to day.

But there are some plants that unfold their beauty before us in a startlingly short period of time. One of the best instances is the tropical water lily. Its petals remain closed during the day, but when the sun is nearing its final western position, first one and then another petal slowly unfolds until they all fall into position, leaving the heart of the flower exposed to the night and the fliers.

All water lilies are not night-bloomers, however; the various species have their particular habits, some opening and others closing as the heat of the day reaches them. The well-known "four o'clocks," though they open late in the afternoon, do not follow a set schedule. In this group the opening process is led by the white flowers, and followed by the reds and other colors.

When early morning comes these four o'clocks close their petals and die, since each flower blooms only one day.

Two still more familiar flowers of rapid development are the crocus and the tulip, which open when the sun begins to warm the earth, and close when the air becomes cooler.

Water Lilies

On the cactus family both night-life and day-life are exemplified, the former in the night-blooming cereus, the latter, the Christmas cactus. A closer study of these rapidly-developing plants would undoubtedly help us to appreciate the slow motion growth of all Nature's children that are around us.

Billy Evans Says

POWER CARRIES THRILL
 Power carries the biggest thrill in all forms of sport.

The punch is a greater factor than science in achieving fame in the athletic world.

It is far more scientific to lay down a perfect punt and beat it out than knock the ball over the fence. Last winter while hobnobbing with a number of the leading professional golfers, I heard the pro and con of the question.

I was particularly interested in the impressions of Walter Hagen, who to my way of thinking is about the last word as a stylist, both as to dress and golf.

"Power is a big factor in golf, but the power alone will never get anyone below the 100 class," said Hagen.

"With power there must be correct timing, perfect rhythm, absolute co-ordination of mind and body."

"Some of the longest drivers in the golf game are small of stature. Naturally they combine power, timing and rhythm."

GETTING LINE ON RUTH
 The following day the truth of what Walter Hagen had said was brought forcibly home. I was in St. Petersburg, Fla., at the time, where the New York Yankees were in training. Going out to the ball park I had an opportunity to see Babe Ruth in action. Never in my life had I seen him look better. In training all winter he was in perfect physical condition.

It was a warm spring day and had it not been for Babe Ruth's club swinging act, would have been mighty uncomfortable.

Against very ordinary pitching the Babe was missing as many balls as he hit. In fine shape, the power was there, but it was apparent something else was lacking.

TIMING AND RHYTHM
 Then my mind reverted back to Hagen's conversation of the day previous, that power alone wouldn't get you anywhere in golf. I realized the same held good for baseball.

Babe had plenty of power, but the timing and rhythm was lacking. There was no co-ordination of brain and brawn. The winter's rest had taken its toll.

Jack Dempsey looked in great shape when he lost the title to Tunney. He seemed to have plenty of power, but when the opportunity presented itself to slip over a punch, something held him back or else his effort was wild.

Out of the ring for three years, his timing was sadly at fault.

LEGAL ACTION THREATENED AS YOUNGS BATTLE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—To the victor the spoils—if the victor can collect them. The battle line in the war over who is to direct the youthful George Young, Catalina channel conqueror, to wealth, was drawn taut today with threatened legal action in the offing.

In Los Angeles, Mrs. Jean Young, counselled by George's former best pal, Bill Hastings; his former swimming instructor, Johnny Walker; and Attorney W. H. Sheldon, was waiting a reply from San Francisco to the wires she dispatched last night deposing several of her son's "managers" and warning a theater there not to pay any money to the channel swimmer nor any of his representatives.

Legal action will follow, the faction here claims, if Young or his "managers" fail to comply with the messages dispatched by Mrs. Young.

In the San Francisco sector, the Canadian here, was reported to be sticking by his guns, and demanding that Henry O'Byrne, his manager, be allowed to continue to reap 40 per cent of all earnings as his contract calls for.

Supporting George in the battle to accumulated and care for his own nest egg was Ralph Levy, who the Mrs. Young side claims has nothing to do with anything; and Henry O'Byrne, who financed George's channel attempt.

Waving the olive branch in an attempt at peace-making was P. R. Watkins, attorney for William Wrigley Jr. Watkins, after an unsuccessful attempt to persuade Mrs. Young to go to San Francisco announced that "Mr. Wrigley's only interest in the case was George's best interest."

Watkins stated that he was sure that if George and Mrs. Young could have a "heart-to-heart" talk that all the difficulty would be straightened out.

"I have advised Young's managers to bring him to Los Angeles," Watkins said, "in event that Mrs. Young continues to refuse to go to San Francisco."

One telegram from San Francisco by Mrs. Young last night notified Henry O'Byrne that his contract with George was repudiated. Another notified a theater there not to pay any money to George or his managers.

Irish Reinstate 'Patsy' Flanagan

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 3.—"Patsy" Flanagan, backfield star of the Notre Dame football team, has been reinstated in school and will be eligible for football next season. He was suspended when he failed to return to South Bend with the Notre Dame team after the visit to the coast last season.

NORTHWESTERN LOSES COACH

Glenn Thistlethwaite has been named football coach at University of Wisconsin. He will succeed George Little, who feels that his duties as director of athletics are arduous enough without the added responsibility of handling the gridiron activities.

For five years Thistlethwaite has been in charge of football at Northwestern university. Prior to that time his coaching activities had been confined to the preparatory schools, where he had met with remarkable success.

When he came to Northwestern, football was at a decidedly low ebb at the Evanston institution. Installing a new football system is a tedious task. It took the new coach two years to get his methods under way, then he began to get real action.

In 1925 Northwestern furnished the biggest surprise of the season by defeating the supposedly invincible Michigan eleven, 3-0. The game was played on a field ankle deep in mud, but both teams worked under the same handicap and Northwestern emerged the winner.

Northwestern was ranked second to Michigan that year in the Big Ten ratings. Last fall Thistlethwaite achieved the goal of his ambition, winning a Big Ten title. True, he was forced to share the honor with Michigan, but he had brought a championship to Northwestern.

Bringing a football tallender to a championship in five years is a remarkable achievement. Without a doubt it won for him his new position at Wisconsin, carrying with it a substantial increase in salary.

Rogers Hornsby, who has signed with the New York Giants at a salary of something like $40,000 a year, drew down the modest annual dividend of $1800 when he started his major league career with the St. Louis Cardinals twelve years ago.

Bowling enthusiasts throughout a large section of the Northwest and across the Canadian border are looking forward with keen interest to the annual tournament of the International Bowling association, which is to be opened in Minneapolis February 11.

60 HORSES REMAIN IN COFFROTH RACE

TIJUANA, Mexico, Feb. 3.—Sixty horses remain eligible today for the Coffroth Handicap scheduled for March 13. Yesterday was the date set for the posting of the second installment of the $200 entrance fee. Of the 98 originally nominated for this western classic, for all-age horses, 35 were scratched and more are expected to be weeded out within the next few days.

The field which will go to the post on the day of the race, will not exceed 20 horses. It is believed. The owners of this select field must post an additional starting fee of $500. The entrance and starting fees, designated as "added money" in the $75,000 added purse, will go to the winner along with the winner's share of the purse.

Fish Figures in Passing of Johnson

Bass Arrives Along With Suspension

The rise and fall of Ban Johnson can well be written about what was once a Damon and Pythias friendship.

Charles Comiskey and Ban Johnson once formed such a partnership. It twice was dissolved and finally developed into a bitter feud that still exists.

Charles Comiskey, once a member of this well-known firm of Damon and Pythias, overnight became relentless. He set out to get Ban Johnson and has succeeded. It was a long battle that finds both men broken in health.

What price emity! Was the goal worth it?

Bass Was Wedge
 A three-pound bass was the wedge that first split the friendship of Charles Comiskey and Ban Johnson. We must go back more than a score of years for the setting of what at first seemed mere comedy, but later developed into the mellowest of mellerdrammer.

Fleider Jones, star center fielder of the Chicago White Sox, had been put out of a bill game by the late "Silk" O'Loughlin. At the time Pythias Johnson was in Wisconsin fishing. Catching an unusually fine bass he decided to express it to "Damon" Comiskey.

In the meantime, "Silk" O'Loughlin had wired the facts of his trouble with Fleider Jones to President Johnson, expressing the belief that Jones should be indefinitely suspended. It seems Johnson agreed with him.

Simultaneous Packages
 As the express man presented Comiskey with the bass all nicely packed in ice, a telegraph messenger handed him a wire announcing the suspension of Jones.

Comiskey was furious, as the suspension came on the day of a very important series. He looked at the fish, then telegram, and vice versa. He finally cooled down to the point where he was able to dictate a wire to Johnson which read something like this: "Jones' suspension. Thanks. Sorry. Impossible to play the fish in center field."

That wire served to open a breach that for some years caused a deep friendship to turn to bitter emity. The breach finally was patched up.

Kindly Feeling Killed
 Then, just when it seemed as if Damon and Pythias were hitting on all six again, another unfortunate episode developed that killed for all time the kindly feeling of the two men for each other and ultimately brought about the end of Johnson's career in baseball. We must go back to the days of the World War for the facts.

The war caused many of the minor leagues to suspend in 1918, among them the Pacific Coast. Incidentally it shot the personnel of the major league clubs to pieces.

In need of pitchers, Comiskey secured permission to have Jack Quinn of the Vernon club of the Coast league finish the season with Chicago. Quinn, then a veteran, showed great form, winning five and losing only one game.

Deal Made for Quinn
 Chicago made a deal for Quinn, only to discover that the New York Yankees insisted on a prior claim. Comiskey wanted Quinn badly. The case was carried to the national commission, Johnson with the other two members, voting that Quinn belonged to New York.

It is said Comiskey raved and ranted for days, declared a renewal of his bitter feud with Johnson, and said he would never be satisfied until he had driven him from baseball.

SULLIVAN, IN S. A., TELLS AMBITION TO CONQUER IRISH CHANNEL NEXT, THEN RETIRE

Henry F. Sullivan wants to swim the Irish channel and then he will be willing to retire from long distance competition.

That is what the only person in the world who has conquered both the English and Catalina channels and the lone American who has paddled from Catalina to the mainland said today in Santa Ana where he is appearing in a vaudeville theater "turn."

"The Irish channel is the longest, coldest and most difficult stretch of water in the world," Sullivan told The Register. "It is doubtful if anyone will ever swim it but I can't be ruled out for hoping and trying and in this attempt it will be my ambition to establish an endurance mark that will last for all time."

Holds Endurance Record
 Sullivan, incidentally, already holds the world's endurance record of 23 hours and 50 minutes, doing this when he conquered the turbulent English channel August 5-6, 1923. He required 22 hours and 45 minutes to complete the Catalina swim. Sullivan makes no pretense at fast swimming but he believes, and his records, prove it, that he can remain in the water longer and absorb more "punishment" than any other human being.

Sullivan says the English channel is more difficult to swim than Catalina because of the strength of the tides which run from four to seven knots whereas the Catalina tides run from one to two knots. The Catalina water is colder, he stated, but cold water does not hamper a swimmer so much as the tides. The Lowell Mass., marvel is dean of all the long distance men although he asserts he is only now 33 years of age, having begun competitive swimming in 1908.

No Money Inducement
 There was no money up as an inducement for Sullivan to attempt the swim from Catalina. He did it, he said, because of his unwillingness to accept defeat from the stretch of water which baffled him in the Wrigley Marathon, when he dropped out of the race after covering about 10 miles.

The swimmer weighed 215 pounds as he stood on the scales stripped after the swim. He weighed 232 pounds just before entering the water at Catalina—a loss of 17 pounds as a result of the 23-mile swim.

In his theatrical act, Sullivan exhibits the handsome trophy which was presented to him for successfully swimming the English channel, from England to France, a feat which only two persons, Bill Burgess and Captain Webb, have accomplished. He also talks informally and explains points of interest in a film that was taken during the English swim. He completes his engagement here tonight.

DOGS BEATEN AGAIN AS ROGERS IS LOST

The loss of Keith Rogers, star center, was held the cause of the 34 to 23 defeat of the Santa Ana junior college team playing San Bernardino last night at the Gate city in the first round of the second series of playoffs for the Southern California junior college championship.

Rogers, who was decapitated by the faculty axe, is definitely off the college team for the balance of the season.

Disorganized and aimless, the Don cage team seemingly could not get their bearings and as a result San Bernardino acquired a 20 to 8 lead in the first half. Even though Santa Ana rallied and outplayed their opponents during the rest of the game the lead could not be recovered. The lineup:

Santa Ana (23) (34) San Bernardino
 Edgar (12)..... (4) Atkins
 Labruchelle (8)..... (13) Skinner
 Sullivan (1)..... (10) Bobitt
 Kox (1)..... (1) Stancer
 Allen..... (10) Breslin
 Substitutions: Santa Ana—Rozelle for Edgar, White (1) for Kox; Harter for White, Smith for Allen, San Bernardino—Bowlinghouse for Atkins, Johnson for Stancer.

POLY CAGE TUTOR

Something of a miracle man is William (Bill) Foote, new Santa Ana high school basketball coach, who leads his Poly charges against Glendale in a Coast Preparatory league fracas in Andrews gymnasium here tomorrow afternoon.

Foote hasn't a veteran on his squad and Santa Ana has never won any basketball titles but the team won a game last week and stands a good chance of repeating against Glendale.

POLYTES FACE GLENDALE FIVE ON TOMORROW

Santa Ana's high school basketball team changes color like a chameleon. Another new lineup will take the court tomorrow afternoon, to play Glendale, in Andrews gymnasium at 3:30 o'clock. Coach William Foote, cage mentor, said today, Poly's league-leading Class C team will play the curtain raiser.

The new lineup places Lory Hogue and Walter Jordan at the forward positions, Charles Ehrhorn at center, Warren Sullivan and Julius Bordon guards.

Coach Foote said that this combination has shown the best teamwork that he has seen exhibited since the loss of Chet Siegel and Don Smith depleted the squad.

In a game last night against the Tustin varsity, Santa Ana gave proof of its improved playing by winning 23 to 20. Lory Hogue, forward, is the most dependable basket shooter on the team and it was the digits he made that gave Santa Ana its victory.

Glendale, although decisively defeated last week by Long Beach, is expected to furnish severe competition. Coach Foote saw the Dynamiters defeat San Diego on San Diego's own court two weeks and he is not too optimistic. Both Santa Ana and the Dynamiters have a percentage of .333 in the Coast Preparatory league.

The Class C curtain raiser between Coach Lynn Crawford's charges and the Glendale midgets is expected to be a thriller.

The varsity squads will take the floor at about 4:30 o'clock.

Rickard Asks $20 Top for Bout Seats

JUDGE AMES TO HEAR ALLEGED FRAUD DISPUTE

An alleged mining stock fraud, which left J. L. Anderson, promoter, facing a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, will be threshed out in superior court April 15, according to an order of Superior Judge Homer G. Ames, who fixed that date for Anderson's trial.

The date, which delays the trial beyond the legal limit provided by the laws, was set at the request of Anderson and his attorney, M. M. Gordon, of Los Angeles.

According to the complaint against Anderson, he induced F. A. McFarren to subscribe $1500 to stock of the Western Smelters and Refining company, which Anderson claimed to control.

McFarren asserts that Anderson made numerous misrepresentations to him regarding the company and its properties, consisting of a section of land in San Bernardino county, in which a mine was said to have been located.

Anderson told McFarren, according to the latter, that ore from the mine assayed 10 per cent to 60 per cent lead and that Anderson controlled the stock of the company; also that the property was unencumbered.

McFarren claims that he later discovered these various statements to be untrue. There was a $1100 mortgage against the property, for one thing, he says, and the mine, he claims, did not live up to Anderson's picture of it.

NEWS FROM ORANGE COUNTY TOWNS

T. C. R. FUND EXPLAINED BY BOYS' CHIEF

ORANGE, Feb. 3.—There is nothing wrong with the younger generation. It is the adult generation which must be reasoned with and taught to understand. With these remarks, Ralph Cole, boys' work executive of the Y.M.C.A. for California, summed up the work of the Y.M.C.A. at the second report meeting of the workers in the local Y.M.C.A. hall yesterday at noon. Addressing the "Y" workers and the Lions club, Cole stressed the fact that the Y.M.C.A. is reaching into the sparsely settled districts and doing good. He pointed to the fact that many influential persons were back of the movement.

In California, there are 18,000 boys signed with the Y.M.C.A., he said. Fourteen hundred men are working on committees and advisory boards of Y.M.C.A., according to his figures. In the United States $6,000,000 is paid in yearly membership fees, $24,000,000 is realized from the cafeterias and other features conducted by the Y.M.C.A., $10,000,000 is presented to the organization and there are over 1,000,000 members, he said.

It was announced by Oscar Leitchfuss, Lion president, that Miss Beatrice Woodward, state executive of health camps, will speak to the Lions club next week. The cup which will be presented to the winning team in the basketball league sponsored by the American Legion by the Lions club was exhibited. It was turned over to Roy Edwards to be displayed in the windows of the First National bank building until it is awarded.

Reports from the "Y" workers showed a total of $476 collected. Of this, $174 was collected since the first report meeting on Tuesday. That prospective contributors are digging deeply into their pockets this year, was the assertion of several of the workers. According to C. E. Morrow, "Y" secretary, who is heading the drive, indications point to a higher average of contributions with a smaller force of workers than last year.

ORANGE, Feb. 3.—Addressing the Center street P.T.A. Miss Beatrice Woodward, state tubercular work executive, opened a two weeks speaking tour in Orange and vicinity yesterday afternoon.

She asked that favorable opinion of her listeners be expressed to representatives to the state assembly regarding a bill now before that body which would provide a permanent nurse for the camp.

NEWPORT ADS
OF INQUIRIES

NEWPORT BEACH, Feb. 3.—Inquiries from 19 states and two foreign countries have been received by city officials of Newport Beach during the past few weeks, asking for information about Newport Beach. It was announced today. The inquiries came as the direct result of newspaper advertisements placed in the leading newspapers of the country a few weeks ago by local trustees.

Specific information on investments in Newport Beach is sought in many of the letters.

People in Iowa, Colorado, Nebraska and New York were the most interested. It was shown. A number of letters from each of these states have been received by the city.

Other persons making inquiries live in the states of Massachusetts, Washington, Michigan, Illinois, Idaho, Kansas, Ohio, South Dakota, Georgia, Wyoming, Oregon, Wisconsin, Indiana and Minnesota. A number of inquiries were received from persons residing in northern California. Several letters were received from residents of Canada and Mexico.

All of the letters have been answered and several hundred booklets advertising the city have been mailed out as a result of the newspaper advertising campaign.

ANAHEIM CITRUS GROWERS
GET $1,032,000 FOR CROP
SOLD THROUGH ASSOCIATION

ANAHEIM, Feb. 3.—The Anaheim district is wealthier by approximately $1,032,000 as the result of the operations of the Anaheim Citrus Fruit associations during the year just closed, the report presented by Secretary-Manager W. H. Schureman at the annual stockholders' meeting of the association, held today in the Elks' clubhouse, revealed.

Approximately 300 member-growers and guests attended the sessions. Principal addresses during the day were given by Paul Armstrong, assistant general manager and Oscar Cornwell, traffic manager of the California Fruit Growers exchange, and Dale R. King, manager of the Northern Orange County Citrus exchange.

Growers who marketed through the association received a total net amount of $52,404.78 for fruit handled during the past season, which, added to $100,000, which represents the amount of money spent locally by the association as expenses of operation, brings the total actually realized by the city and district to approximately $1,032,404.78, the report reveals.

In addition, closing of the books for this year has revealed a total of $37,114.31 surplus to be distributed to the growers as a refund, at the rate of 11.34 cents per box. This amount increased the net amount to be realized by the growers for the entire season to $92,404.78 and augments the total returns to the district in a like amount.

During the past season, the association shipped a total of 330,043 boxes of fruit or 825 carloads at the rate of 400 boxes to the car, which represents an increase of 25 per cent over the previous year when 325 carloads of the same number of boxes were put on the rails, the report states.

The season was the largest in the history of the house, from the standpoint of number of boxes shipped with the exception of the 1920-21 season, which was 14 months in length and the 1923-24 season, when approximately 8000 more boxes of valencias were handled. From the standpoint of total net returns to the growers, the season just closed was the best in the history of the house, it is revealed.

An average price of $1.89 per loose box net to the grower was paid on all varieties during the season and an average of $1.91 net to the grower per loose box for all valencias handled during the season. There were 320,823 loose boxes handled, with a 63.87 per cent pack-out attained.

The association handled a total of 318,904 packed boxes of valencias during the season, paying average net price to the grower of $2.721, not including the refund. Navels shipped during the first pool period brought an average packed box return, without refund, of $2.230; navels in pool No. 2 brought $2.197; Mediterranean Sweets brought $2.20; St. Michaels, $1.709 and seedlings, $1.867.

Welfare activities of the corps were reported by Mrs. Carrie I. Lewis, chairman of the welfare committee. During the year, $407.50 was expended in welfare work, she reported. Sewing estimated at $25 has just been completed by her committee for poor children. Since the last meeting 20 sick calls have been made and 10 bouquets sent. She announced that Mrs. Sarah McKibben, wife of the post commander, is ill in a Los Angeles hospital.

EVENING SALUTATION

Whatever you want, if you wish for it long.
With constant yearning and ceaseless desire,
If you wish soaring upward on wings so strong
That they never grow languid, never tire,
Why, over the storm cloud and out of the dark
It will come flying some day to you,
As the dove with the olive branch flew to the ark,
And the wish you've been dreaming, it will Come true.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

MINDFUL OF THE RIVER

The decision of the board of supervisors to take no step toward the purchase of county fair grounds at the location on the state highway near the county hospital is another emphatic call issued in this county for action looking to the construction of adequate levees along the west bank of the Santa Ana river. The supervisors declared themselves as opposed to the purchase for the reason that a large investment in ground and buildings at that point would necessitate a heavy expenditure for a levee and other protective work in order to keep the river floods off the fair grounds.

The other emphatic call for action in relation to the river situation was that given by the grand jury in its report to the court. The situation along the river channel was pointed out as something demanding immediate attention.

The county already has a heavy investment in the neighborhood and probably more than any other property owner is directly interested in keeping the river's floods within its channel.

In brief, the situation is as follows: The Santa Ana river channel from West Orange to the sea is in the hands of the Newbert Protection district, organized many years ago. This district maintains heavy levees, covered with a thick growth of willows. The center of the channel is kept clear of growth. The levees are in better shape this year than ever before. On the east side of the river from the upper danger point at Olive down to West Orange, joining the Newbert district on that side, is the West Orange-Olive Protection district, which maintains levees and fencing at all points where the river is likely to break through. On the west bank, from the Newbert district northeastward to the upper danger point at Olive, no thorough, systematic protection work has been done. Here and there, local interests have done a good deal of work, but there are weak spots that stand as invitations to the river on a rampage.

Property owners who are directly interested in the river menace know the situation. There has been difficulty in securing the organization of a protection district for the reason that the area directly interested is so small and the length of river channel so long that the expense of doing adequate protection work has seemed beyond the means of the suggested district. So, nothing has been done. It has come to the point, apparently, that nothing will be done unless the county is willing to pay most or all of the bills. Evidently the county supervisors prefer to allow the county property now located in the area to take its chances of damage from the river rather than undertake the heavy expenditures involved in river protection—take these chances until the construction of the proposed Prado dam will do away with danger from floods—but is unwilling to add materially to the county's investment in that area. That being the case, why not select a tract east of the river, where there is no menace from the river and establish fair grounds upon it? The difference of a half-mile or three-fourths of a mile is not enough to make any material difference in the location of the fair ground.

NEW LIFE FOR THEM

Electric interurban railways are coming back. In recent years they have been hard pressed by motor vehicles. Statistics show that the private automobile has given them about four times as much competition as the motor bus, and the two combined have made the electric railways' profits vanish and their very existence precarious.

The railways now have got their second wind and are going to fight back, not in any mean way, but by giving better service and by using the most up-to-date sales methods.

First, they are improving the cars themselves, making them better looking and more comfortable. Next, they are advertising extensively and interestingly by means of car cards, station cards, newspaper publicity, safety meetings, new uniforms for conductors, and so on. They are telling everybody whom they hope it may concern that electric transportation is more dependable in all weathers than motor transportation, that it is safer and cheaper, having its own right of way and its own well-trained operators.

It is probably true that the electric railways have a real place to fill in the modern transportation system. But in this competitive world they have to do something more than keep their cars moving. The public likes to be told all about what it gets for its money. That's the result of the era of super-advertising and super-salesmanship of recent years.

BILLIONS OF TAXES

Final figures from the Bureau of Internal Revenue show that income tax collections last year reached the enormous total of $2,172,000,000. That was about $350,000,000 more than the year before.

The experts had declared that the government's income from this source would be curtailed because the rates were lowered. Evidently the tax cut opened new resources, mainly moral and psychological. With lower rates, taxpayers made more honest and complete reports, taking less trouble to figure out technical exemptions.

This year, if the same rates are maintained, the income tax collections may be still larger, because of the increased prosperity of last year, on which this year's payments are based.

May the government spend the money wisely.

A HIGHBROW PUBLIC

Prof. Will C. Durant of Columbia university says he never expected that Americans would buy more than 1500 copies of his "Story of Philosophy." Neither did the publisher. The book was written and published with no expectation of profit, but as a rather philanthropic contribution to public education.

"We were swept off our feet," says Prof. Durant, "by the demand for the book. We can't quite understand it yet." More than 100,000 copies have been sold so far, and the sales are rolling up right along. It continues the best non-fiction seller of the year.

Obviously as Prof. Durant and his publisher admit, they underestimated the intellectual status of the American people. When there is so much interest in a book on philosophy, there must be a pretty high cultural level, and a great deal more willingness to use the mind for hard thinking than our authors and publishers have assumed.

May be other authors and publishers will learn something from this, and give the public more grown-up reading matter.

Be Careful at All Times

Pasadena Star-News

Granted that many drivers are careless. Admitted that rules should be rigid and should be stringently enforced, to govern driving. But—what about pedestrians? Those who walk are not altogether innocent, all of them at all times of reckless conduct in traffic. In the larger cities, signals, crossing officers and requirement of simultaneous movement and stop of pedestrian travel have cut down the volume of pedestrian carelessness in traffic. But even there, occasionally, there is a reckless act by a pedestrian which brings disaster.

And out in those sections of cities where there are no intersection signals; and out in the country and in the smaller towns where there is no established regulation of traffic, the pedestrian frequently forgets himself or herself and runs into danger and endangers others.

Over in Connecticut a state legislator has introduced a bill which would require every pedestrian in Connecticut on the highway between sunset and sunrise to carry a light visible at least fifty feet or a red reflector visible at least fifty feet. This denotes attention of the problem of regulating the pedestrian as well as the driver.

Every pedestrian should bear in mind that the careful driver is under tension at all times in traffic; that the driver has a hard time at best in threading his way safely through the maze of traffic on busy streets and highways. The pedestrian, for his own safety, and for the safety of the driver, should be scrupulously careful not to clog up streets or highways and not to throw preventable perils into the way of drivers.

Lower Rates, Larger Returns

Oakland Tribune

When it was predicted that a lowering of income tax rates would mean an increase in returns, gentlemen with more faith in mathematics than knowledge of human nature, sent up a derisive shout. Such reasoning, they maintained, if carried to extreme, would mean that no rates at all would bring the maximum in collections.

Perhaps they were right, logically and mathematically—but the 1926 income tax collections at lower rates amount to more than the collections in 1925. The convincing figures which represent so many cold dollars say that in 1926, $2,172,000,000 was collected under the revenue law from corporations and individuals, whereas in 1925, and with a higher rate there was collected $1,825,704,135.

Of course there is a point below which reductions in rate will bring lower returns and it may be that point has been reached. The higher schedule of 1925, however, and high schedules as a rule mean that large amounts of money will be withdrawn from industry and put into tax exempt securities. The lower rates have meant more taxable incomes, more industry, more work, and a hastening of the time when the national debts may be paid.

To Control Radio

Fresno Republican

The radio conference committee, of the two houses of congress, has reached a new tentative agreement on a radio control measure that appears to be an entirely practical plan.

A commission of five would be appointed by the president, one to come from each of five zones created in the bill. The committee would have jurisdiction over granting, renewing and revoking all station licenses and would make all regulations for a year. Thereafter the committee would decide only matters referred to it by the secretary of commerce. The secretary of commerce would be vested with all administrative functions and given full control over operation.

The present radio situation is intolerable. There appears to be almost no order to it. Stations conflict with one another to such an extent that it very frequently is impossible to get good reception from any of them.

There is enough difficulty with radio without having it in a chaotic condition so far as administration is concerned. Congress will do well to hasten some sort of a plan as here outlined.

FEAR OFTEN MAKES CHILD STAMMER

Most investigators today believe that stammering is definitely associated with some disturbance of the emotions.

It occurs particularly in persons who have an underlying tendency to excitability. If a child stammers, the investigator tries to find out the particular cause in his environment or in his life history which is responsible.

Sometimes an older brother or playmate is overbearing; sometimes the child is too much crowded in his work at school or at home; sometimes there are conditions which keep him constantly in a state of fear, either physical, mental or emotional. Under such circumstances, the proper procedure naturally involves removal of the child from the circumstances which are responsible.

The child may be encouraged to be tranquil while talking, and to avoid talking in the midst of excitement. Various methods have been evolved for causing the child to talk slowly and smoothly. These include the practice of rhymes, the mother or some other sympathetic person teaching the child by example, reciting the rhymes slowly and distinctly while he repeats them line by line in the same smooth, distinct manner.

Other methods involve the use of rhythmic exercises associated with the practice of speech, and the use of speech breathing manipulations, as well as other similar artificial techniques which are not to be especially recommended because of their artificiality.

In many instances the treatment of stammering involves consultation with an expert in child psychology, rather than with experts on speech or on diseases of the ear, nose and throat.

The Wonder of the Age

Using a Longer Life

Life's span is being lengthened, thanks to medical science. We have a greater "life expectation" than our grandfathers had; our grandchildren will have one greater than our own. It is all very encouraging.

But before we rejoice too noisily about it, we might stop and consider how we can make this extra life period worth while. Just what is the greatest value we can get out of life, anyway, is it mere length of days, or is it something else?

Many an ancient dodder his way through 90 years to a ripe old age and finally dies without once getting a glimpse of the glamor and glory of which life is capable.

What is "real living," after all? It is, unfortunately, something not easily defined. The greatest boons life can confer are not, ordinarily, things that men can tell each other about. They are subtle, impalpable, fleeting and indefinable. There is no certain recipe for attaining them. They elude some who seek them and come unasked to others.

But we know their presence by the fruits. When each dawning brings a faint, elusive hint of the freshness of creation and the immortal youth of all life; when stars and trees and running water speak to the innermost man and tell him, comfortingly, that he, like their beauty, is imperishable; when a man can survey his daily work and find that it is good, and can rest his spirit in the assurance of perfect freedom—then, perhaps, he is finding life's real possibilities.

Length of days is not all, nor is it even of first importance. We are not here to vegetate. Let the doctors help us to prolong our lives. We will thank them for it. But let us, meanwhile, make sure that we know how to use these added years.

THE CLIFF
God made the face of the unscaled cliff
Towering, jagged, steep;
Only the unmoored winds
Around its heights may sweep,
And the feathery cargo of the mists Floats leisurely and chill,
And birds of powerful pinion wheel
And dip and rest at will.
At the foot of the cliff, in a pile of stones,
Under the turquoise sky,
Man has made a prison house,
Sullen and gray and high;
Within the keep of mortared stone,
I saw the unhappy throng;
Three walls only, shut them in,
Three walls thick and strong,
For the cliff is steep and jagged,
Towering over all—
Did God intend the unscaled cliff
To be a prison wall!

Sleep ought to be and eventually will be abolished, according to one of science's new preachments. Maybe the radio is having something to do with it.
Scientists are raising a pedigreed oyster. Science is wonderful. The next thing you know you won't be able to get any sleep at the seashore because of the noisy clams bragging about their family trees.

Your Income Tax

No. 16.

In making out their income-tax returns for the year 1926, taxpayers are advised by the Bureau of Internal Revenue carefully to present their claims with regard to deductions for losses. To be allowed such claims must conform closely to the wording of the statute. Losses are deductible if incurred in a taxpayer's trade or business, in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with the taxpayer's trade or business, or if arising from fires, storms, shipwrecks, or other casualty, or by theft, and if not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

Business losses result, usually, from the purchase and sale of merchandise. Such losses are ascertained by means of inventories, which are required whenever in the opinion of the commissioner of Internal Revenue their use is necessary to determine the income of any taxpayer.

The cost of capital assets, less adjustment for depreciation and salvage value, may be deducted from gross income if their usefulness suddenly is terminated, and they are disposed of. For example, a manufacturer may be compelled to scrap machinery because it has become inadequate or obsolete. He may deduct the loss sustained, if he has sold, abandoned, or otherwise permanently parted with the machinery. Such loss must be charged off the books of the taxpayer and fully explained in his income-tax return.

If a taxpayer demolishes a building used in his trade or business and replaces it he may deduct the loss sustained. But if he buys the site of a new building, land upon which is located an old building, demolition of the old building is not considered a loss, and therefore is not deductible. The value of real estate, exclusive of the old improvements, is presumed to be equal to the purchase price of the land and buildings plus the cost of removing the useless building.

Consider World Bathed By Ocean of Liquid Air

New York Herald-Tribune

In his address at the American Museum of Natural History on the possibility of other inhabited worlds, Professor Henry Norris Russell, of Princeton, let fall as his hearers have learned to expect from him, scores of remarks upon which a philosopher—if such a creature survives on earth—might pause and speculate for months. Perhaps the most suggestive of them was the chance statement that if the earth left the sun and adventured off into space by itself it soon would be provided with an ocean, not of liquid water, but of liquid air. Minus their daily dose of sunlight, our watery waves would soon be frozen to jagged rocks. The blue flood of liquid air would wash over and around these solid cliffs of water as our present ocean rolls against its cliffs of stone. A pall of water poured into the sea of liquid air would be quenched as instantly and as violently as is a pall of liquid lava poured into our present ocean.

The remark is a lesson in relativity; not the mathematical relativity of Dr. Albert Einstein, but the older, philosophical relativity which states that all judgments depend upon what is usual and accustomed. To the Eskimo New York's climate seems excessively warm. To the Hottentot it seems extremely cold. Both opinions are relative. We have no means of knowing that something analogous to life could not exist with liquid air for its necessary liquid, just as present terrestrial life needs liquid water. There was a time in the past of the earth when its ocean was one of liquid rock, as hot as the rare volcanic lavas are today. The "air" of those days contained vapors of iron and of silica and aluminum and a dozen similar elements; all of them now surviving only as rocks, not as air. The particular chemical materials which happen at any moment of earth history to be liquid and solid and gaseous do not depend upon anything fundamental and unchangeable, but merely upon the temperature. From an ocean of liquid lava and clouds of aluminum rain to an ocean of liquid air and clouds of condensed hydrogen or helium is merely a matter of two or three thousand degrees of temperature.

We know indubitably that space contains many bodies which have oceans of liquid rock and even hotter bodies which have even oceans at all, but are gaseous all the way through. It is likely enough that the universe includes the other extreme also; worlds whose coast lines are of frozen water and whose waves are liquid air or liquid hydrogen. There could be on such worlds no life like our life, but who would we believe ourselves possessors of the only kind of life there is?

E. LANSING RAY, PUBLISHER OF THE ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT, SAYS:

THAT those conscientious business leaders who laid the plans for the Better Business Bureau movement have given a two-fold significance to the words, "Better Business."

Through vigilance and tactful suggestion, the Bureau throughout the country have really raised the standards of business. They have offered new support to honest advertising and honest marketing by exposing and correcting those relatively few instances of unscrupulous practice which reflect on business generally.

Thus the Bureau movement has made business better in the sense that business has become generally cleaner.

But that is only half the story. As business standards have been elevated, established business has profited by the increased confidence which the Bureau movement has engendered in the public mind. Honest business is finding its just reward in the loyalty of customers, and in the increase of their patronage.

Business is better in the sense that it is more profitable. It is easier to make sales to a public which understands and appreciates truthful advertising.

All of which proves again the truth of the adage which we used to write in our copy-books at school: HONESTY IS THE BEST POLICY.

Forest Bedtime

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

WINTER is a problem for bird, insect and animal life. The great majority of insects die leaving larvae to revive in the spring. Most of our birds flee southward, the rest managing to die out an existence, although many do perish from hunger and cold. Many fur-bearing animals solve the winter feeding problem by sleeping more or less soundly till spring comes. They accumulate much fat in summer and fall when nature's bounty is greatest and exist on this while hibernating. The bear is commonly considered a fine example of hibernating animal, but in reality he wakes up often on warm days and even crawls out for a little exercise, so that Mr. Bruin may sometimes be met in winter even though he's supposed to be sleeping.
